LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMP HELD IN MURDER

SAMMY MANDELL IS UNDER BOND AFTER BLOW PROVES FATAL

Ring Opponent Dies From Broken Neck During Bout

KANSAS CITY, Kan., June 2.—A preliminary hearing for Sammy Mandell, lightweight boxing champion, was continued today until next Tuesday pending an investigation into the death of Steve Adams who collapsed last night in the second round of a ten round fight.

Mandell is under $5,000 bond on a charge of vagrancy.

Coroner J. W. Hayward, of Wyandotte County, declared he did not know whether an inquest would be called.

An inspection of the ropes of the ring was to be made today to determine if improper construction could have caused Adams' death by throwing him forward, after Mandell sent a sharp left jab to the stomach. Ringside fans told authorities of instances where fighters have rebounded toward the center of the ring, when thrown against the ropes. Adams' neck was broken, according to a report of physicians.

Adams died several minutes after Mandell had sent a hard left to the solar plexus at the opening of the second round. Adams staggered into a clinch. They were separated and were sparring lightly when suddenly Adams collapsed, falling on the ropes.

Dr. L. D. Mable, physician for the American Legion under whose auspices the fight was being staged, rushed to the ring. Several other physicians, spectators at the fight, assisted Dr. Mable. A pulmotor was brought into play, but all aid proved futile.

Dr. J. W. Hayward, county coroner, performed an autopsy and reported Adams' neck was broken. The second and third cervical vertebrae were dislocated and pressing against the spinal cord, he said.

A. J. Eagle, referee, known professionally as Walter Bates, declared that all of Mandell's blows had been clean.

Mandell ripped into Adams in the first round and plainly displayed a superior brand of aggressiveness. Adams fought back, however, and held up his part of the battle to the end of the round.

At the opening of the second round, Mandell again rushed into Adams, punching as he went. When Mandell sunk the solar plexus blow into Adams, Adams staggered a little but went into a clinch and the fighters exchanged light blows in a corner of the ring.

About twenty seconds later, however, Adams, free of his opponent, whirled and sank across the ropes.

Adams had been examined by Dr. Mable yesterday afternoon, and was pronounced in perfect physical condition. He was 24 years old. He weighed in at 136 pounds. Mandell weighed in at 138 pounds.

Mandell, sometimes called the "sheik of fistiana," is known as more of a boxer than a heavy puncher. His record shows he won more fights by decisions than knockouts. He won the title July 3, last year, by outpointing Rocky Kansas in Chicago.

PEKING DEMANDS RECALL OF JAPS

PEKING, June 2.—A sharp demand that Japan recall 2,000 troops she has landed at Tsinan was voiced in a note of protest sent to Tokio today by Wellington Koo, acting foreign minister of the Peking government.

The note declared the landing of the Japanese troops was an infringement of Chinese sovereignty, and a violation of treaty rights. It stated that unless the troops were withdrawn China would not be responsible for any misunderstanding which might arise.

COAL OPERATORS IN MEET AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., June 2.—An important meeting of the Ohio Coal Operators' Association was scheduled here today at which the recent interstate commerce commission ruling, reducing freight rates twenty cents per ton for Ohio coal shipments to the northwest, may be discussed and future action determined in connection with the shutdown of coal mines in this state.

Association officers, have announced unofficially that the ruling would not affect the strike situation.

UNITED STATES READY TO ACT IN CHINA

ANTIOCH STUDENT DISAPPEARS: NOTE INDICATES BOY PLANNED DEPARTURE

George Frederick Adshead, 22, Stockport, Eng., special student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, for two and one-half years, disappeared from the college last Friday leaving a brief note indicating his intention of making a fresh start in life in some other place.

The student's absence did not become known until Tuesday when his roommate, William Holt, found the note in their room in the boys' dormitory and notified college officials.

The incident was kept quiet for a day and announcement of the disappearance then made to the student body by President Arthur E. Morgan at chapel exercises Wednesday morning.

College officials can ascribe no motive for Adshead's act other than that he had been in poor health since he entered college and lately had been under the observation of a physician.

Faculty members first learned of his absence when he failed to appear for classes Tuesday morning. Because Saturday, Sunday and Monday were holidays, no significance was attached to his absence during the intervening period, as it was believed he had left for a few days vacation during the holidays.

Officials are hopeful the student may return and for that reason his absence in England will not be notified for a few days. Meanwhile authorities in Xenia, Dayton and Springfield were notified immediately to make inquiries but asked to observe secrecy in the investigation.

Adshead's status at college has been satisfactory and his scholarship rating good but the youth had been in a somewhat depressed state of mind for a long period, according to President Morgan, and faculty members kept him under surveillance.

Adshead had also had previous conversations with school friends indicating he was turning the idea over in his mind of severing connection with the college, destroying all traces and making a new start in some other part of the country.

College officials, while maintaining an attitude of secrecy, admitted it was known to them that Adshead had had personal disappointments. He appeared in as good spirits as usual Friday, they declared.

It was disclosed that Adshead left untouched money on deposit in a bank, but left instructions that it should be forwarded to his home in England. He had received a letter from home last week in which was enclosed a ten pound note, indicating he was equipped with funds when he disappeared.

President Morgan had had several private talks with the boy in which he expressed his intention of leaving college, but in their last conversation, Adshead had apparently re-considered his intention.

DEATH OF WOUNDED MAN BRINGS TOLL OF FLORIDA RIOTS UP TO FIVE DEAD

TAMPA, Fla., June 2.—The death toll from the riots growing out of mob efforts to take B. F. Levin, alleged slayer of five persons, from the county jail here, mounted to five today when S. J. Ellis of Tampa, wounded in Tuesday night's outbreak, succumbed this morning.

Peace reigned along the "battle front" today following a night of quiet that was in marked contrast to the preceding three nights when mobs attempted to take Levin from the jail.

With additional national guard troops on duty and deputized citizens dispersing gatherings of more than two persons on the streets, a calm settled over the jail section and no semblance of further demonstrations appeared during the night.

The nine o'clock "curfew" request of authorities was carried by Tampons to a great extent and in the late night and early morning hours the streets were virtually deserted whereas for three nights before these hours had marked the night of wild rioting.

The casualty list stood today at five dead and approximately thirty known wounded, with more than thirty alleged mobbers under arrest, according to Sheriff Hiers, and more arrests to be made before the grand jury meets Monday to launch an inquiry into the whole affair.

GIGANTIC RECEPTION PLANNED FOR LINDBERGH AT WASHINGTON

Dirigible And Planes Will Escort Ship To Port—John Hays Hammond Heads Committee Planning Welcome

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Capt. Charles Lindbergh will steam up the historic Potomac River with one of the most brilliant escorts ever furnished an American, to receive probably the most imposing reception ever accorded a private citizen in Washington.

The giant dirigible Los Angeles, scores of army and navy airplanes and hundreds of river craft will travel in the wake of the cruiser Memphis, it was indicated today.

The tortuous river route will carry him from the scene of many famous fleet reviews off the Virginia capes through the favorite cruising ground of presidents and past beautiful Mount Vernon, the ancestral seat of George Washington.

During the long voyage across the Atlantic Capt. Lindbergh probably will occupy an admiral's suite it was said by navy officials. The cruiser Memphis, because it is the flagship of the European squadron, has specially fitted quarters for Admiral Burge, who will not make the trip.

A fast trip but no guarantee against sea-sickness was promised by naval officials. The Memphis, one of the navy's most modern 500 ton cruisers, can speed across the Atlantic at thirty-three knots an hour in comparative comfort for a hardened ocean voyager but with some danger of initial sickness for non-sailors.

Commissioners of the district, collaborating with four members of the cabinet, were busy today under the chairmanship of John Hays Hammond, noted engineer and philanthropist, in arranging the details of Lindbergh's welcome. Historic Pennsylvania avenue will be decorated as on inaugural day, and lined with troops.

An invitation was to go forward today to Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh to come to Washington as a guest of Mrs. Coolidge at the temporary White House.

MOTHER WELCOME
DETROIT, June 2.—Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, mother of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, and acting Mayor John C. Lodge, grand-uncle of the famous aviator, will go to Washington to greet Lindbergh when he arrives there June 11, it was announced today. Former plans to meet him in New York were abandoned when it was learned he had accepted President Coolidge's invitation to visit the capital first.

CINCINNATI PUBLISHER DONATES HUGE SUM TO CITY IF ENDOWMENT IS RAISED

CINCINNATI, O., June 2.—Incorporators of the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts today were busy with plans for raising an endowment fund of $250,000 by the end of next year, this being a contingency upon which a gift of $1,000,000 cash, their home here, and their priceless art collection, have been given to the institute by Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft.

Under the terms of the gift, the income of the endowment fund is to be used for support of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra. The Taft home and the art collection, valued at several millions, are to be transferred at the death of the donors. The incorporators of the institute include some of Cincinnati's most prominent citizens.

Charles P. Taft is publisher of the Cincinnati Times-Star and a brother of Chief Justice William Howard Taft.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO DESERT PEKING; MARINES ARE MOVED

Policy Of Protecting Americans Will Be Carried Out

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The United States is prepared to act with exceeding swiftness in coping with the new crisis which suddenly has arisen in China.

Plans for this action were drawn up weeks ago and were based on the well-grounded belief that despite the dissension in the Cantonese ranks the Nationalist movement was by no means dead and would probably be heard from again in the near future.

The program mapped out by this government does not call for any last ditch defense of Peking, such as has been suggested in London and Tokio, in the event local government in that part of China collapses completely. The American forces are under strict orders to remain neutral as between the various contending Chinese factions and to take no part in the fighting excepting in the defense of American citizens.

Foremost among the considerations of this government is that its nationals shall be protected and that there must be no repetition of the Nanking affair of March 24. Being of the opinion that Americans can best be protected at Tien Tsin or Shanghai rather than at Peking, the government has already prepared to evacuate the legation in the latter city to a port city. Americans in north China have already been advised to withdraw to Tien Tsin and most of them have done so.

It is also hoped that removal to the legation will eliminate a source of danger to American interests inasmuch as any violation of the legation by the Chinese would undoubtedly serve to draw the United States into the Chinese civil war.

Secretary of State Kellogg revealed today that plans for the evacuation of the legation were first considered as early as two months ago, or about the time when the split in the Nationalist party took place. As reported by the International News Service at the time, he took the position that the Cantonese split was not as serious as it appeared on the surface. Accordingly the government made ready to meet the new emergency which were expected to follow as the Nationalists moved northward.

MEDAL FOR FLYER

MADRID, June 2.—The official Gazette today publishes a royal decree granting the medal "plus ultra" to Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, as Spain's recognition of his contribution to the progress of aviation in his trans-Atlantic flight.

PHYSICIAN ASSAILS "FREE CLINICS" AS MENACE TO DOCTORS

State Medical Association Head Flays Endowment Institutions—New York Surgeon Heard As Medical Society Celebrates

Overpopulation in the years to come can never occur, for two reasons, Dr. Robert T. Morris, New York City, declared in an address at the Five-County medical session and seventy-third birthday meeting of the Greene County Medical Society at the O. S. and S. O. Home, Wednesday afternoon.

The first reason, according to Dr. Morris, is the "cultural limit,"—the specific charge of protoplasmic energy allotted both plants and animals, which wear the living organism out and result in the cycle of life. The second reason given is that of the food supply. "We have not scratched the surface yet, in obtaining what the earth holds," Dr. Morris declared. "The new frontier of the new agriculture, is to be based on sub-soil, when plants will be needing less tillage and a better civilization will result. The food supply resulting will care for thousands of millions of people."

"You have your heart in your profession," Dr. Morris said further. "The doctor who sets his people thinking of health is the best doctor."

Dr. Morris is an eminent surgeon, one of the leading medical authorities of the country and a prolific writer.

Dr. Morris had for his subject, "Fundamental Principles of the Fourth Era of Surgery," and he proceeded to go into a technical description of each era. The first era was that of the heroic period, when the wild tribes knew nothing of anatomy and surgery. The second was that of the growth and development of the anatomy; the third, the time of Pasteur and Lister, when the greatest progress was shown and the nature of microbes first noticed and the fourth

DECLARE VAN ORMAN WINNER OF BALLOON RACE SECOND TIME

Akron Pilot Brings Ritchfield Cup To That City Again

AKRON, O., June 2.—Plans for a balloon race, Friday for W. T. Van Orman and W. W. Morton, pilot and aide, respectively, of Goodyear V, winner of the 1927 national balloon race, were going forward here today. Van Orman won first place when he landed at Hancock, Maine, 727 miles from Akron.

The Akron chapter of the National Aeronautical Association, through Van Orman's fourth national victory, will have permanent possession of the Ritchfield trophy, a cup offered three years ago by Paul W. Ritchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Under the rules of Ritchfield's offer, the cup remains in the possession of the city, whose aeronauts win it three times in succession.

In addition to winning the national balloon race four times, Van Orman, with Morton as aide, won the 1926 international balloon race. E. J. Hill, pilot of the Detroit Flying Club's No. 2, took second place in the national event this year, when he brought his balloon to earth near Skowhegan, Me., 665 miles from the starting point.

Finishing third, Captain W. E. Kepner, piloting Army No. 3, landed at Biddeford, Me., 602 miles from Akron.

OPPOSE MERGER

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Railroad consolidation received another setback today when examiners of the interstate commerce commission recommended that the proposal of the New York Central to acquire the Big Four, Cincinnati Northern, Evansville, Indianapolis and Terre Haute, Michigan Central and Chicago, Kalamazoo and Saginaw railroads under a 99-year lease, be denied as "not being in the public interest."

DEBT IS REDUCED
WASHINGTON, June 2.—The national debt was reduced $1,190,000,000 in the year ended May 31, the treasury announced today. The total debt on May 31 was $18,873,000,000.

MARINE REGIMENTS HURRIED NORTH TO PROTECT RAILROAD

Foreigners Agree To Establish Guard at Tien-Tsin

SHANGHAI, June 2.—The sixth and tenth regiments of United States marines, commanded by Gen. Smedley Butler, sailed for North China at 11 o'clock this morning upon the American transport Henderson. It is planned for the Henderson to proceed to Takubar from which point the marines will be taken to Tien-Tsin upon smaller vessels. The detachment sailed under secret orders.

The United States cruiser, Richmond, carrying a contingent of marines, also sailed for Tien-Tsin today.

Probably other warships with marines will be sent north shortly. The fourth regiment of marines, the original marine unit in Shanghai, will remain here.

British and French forces will be sent north immediately in accordance with an international agreement whereby an international force will protect the Tien-Tsin Peking railroad.

It is reported that the United States transport Chaumont is proceeding to Tien-Tsin from Olongapo, Philippine Islands, where units of artillery were taken on board.

MANIFESTO SAID TO CALL OFF REVOLT

MEXICO CITY, June 2.—A manifesto, purported to emanate from Rene Capistran Garza, leader of the religious rebellion, advising rebels to lay down their arms, has been published here.

The manifesto declares that due to military defeats, the death of General Rodolfo Gallegos, the forced departure of Archbishop Jimenez and financial stringency, the revolt must be abandoned.

The manifesto alleges that funds which were to have been forthcoming from an American organization have not been furnished.

MRS. VANDERBILT IS GIVEN DIVORCE

PARIS, June 2.—A decree of divorce was granted today to Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, II, the former Virginia Fair. The judgment, which followed the usual routine court efforts to establish a reconciliation, was read in the private office of the president of the third chamber of the Seine Tribunal.

WILL BID FAREWELL TO FRANCE FRIDAY; SOCIETY IS PEEVED

Flyer Will Leave On Memphis Saturday Morning.

LONDON, June 2.—Adverse weather reports delayed Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight from the Kenly aerodrome to Paris this afternoon.

Although Lindbergh had flown across the Atlantic ocean in unfavorable weather, officers at Kenly advised against his taking off for Paris until the skies cleared a bit.

Fog was reported all along the Paris route. Some rain is falling in Paris, although there is little rain in England.

At 4 o'clock Lindbergh was still awaiting further weather reports of conditions over the English Channel. The weather is now somewhat improved and may clear in time for Lindbergh to make an evening flight to Paris.

After attending a reception at Crocydon where civil pilots presented him with a memento, Captain Lindbergh arrived at the Kenly aerodrome outside London at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Lindbergh left the American embassy at 2:10 for Crocydon, accompanied by Mrs. Houghton, Counselor Sterling and Colonel Kenyon Joyce. Lindbergh was given a greeting wherever he was recognized and a considerable crowd had gathered about the aerodrome at Crocydon to give the flier a farewell.

The young American had acquired a smart English flying suit for his journey back to Paris, consisting of a long brown leather coat and gray breeches. His baggage consisted of a small suitcase and a hat box.

Capt. Lindbergh's public engagements ended with the dinner of the American societies last night. He retired at the embassy shortly after midnight, admitting that the constant round of public appearances, speeches, handshaking, autographing, interviews and elaborate foods was beginning to tire him.

Capt. Lindbergh's departure was intensely disappointing to a number of hostesses who have been besieging the embassy for permission to have him as their guest at private parties. Among them was Lady Astor, who had already obtained Capt. Lindbergh's tentative promise to attend her dance at her home in St. James Square tonight.

During the morning Lindbergh conferred with embassy officials regarding the details of his passage on the American cruiser Memphis, which will carry both himself and his monoplane home. He approved the plans that had been made and gave instructions for taking the plane aboard the warship.

It is understood that "The Spirit of St. Louis" will be taken aboard the Memphis at Southampton tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, instead of today as originally planned. After picking up the plane, the Memphis will proceed to Cherbourg for the aviator, who is expected to go on board Saturday morning.

Capt. Lindbergh was much relieved to find he was going to have the airplane on the same ship. He desires to superintend personally the reassembling of the machine at Washington in preparation for his flight to New York.

Lindbergh has promised to come back to Europe again. He wants to return when he can have all the time and all the privacy he desires to study European flying methods and European airplane construction at first hand.

Capt. Lindbergh's second visit to Paris is entirely unofficial and private and he has refused to make any engagements for tomorrow—his last day upon European soil. But he will visit various French officials who have been so kind to him for a farewell and a last word of thanks.

Naturally the young aviator is highly elated over the prospect of the honors which await him at the hands of his fellow Americans, especially the high honor of being greeted personally by President Coolidge.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 2.—Miss Lizzie Borden, seventy-eight-year-old heiress and central figure in one of the strangest murder mysteries in the history of the country, died at her palatial home here today.

Since her father, Andrew J. Borden, millionaire and the city's wealthiest citizen, and his wife were found slain, evidently with an axe, in their home on August 4, 1892, the motive for the horrible crime, the weapon used or the slayer have never been found. Miss Borden was in the house with the doors locked but she maintained her innocence and after a memorable court trial was acquitted.

SENIORS CONVEY THRILLS TO LARGE AUDIENCE IN CLASS PLAY

The new amateur season seems to be concerning itself with the more mysterious processes of crime and at least one high-grade thriller has emerged in "The Third Chair," by Baynard Veiller, which was unusually well given at the opening performance Wednesday night before a large audience in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium by the senior class of Central High School as its annual stage offering.

It is something new and just a little different in gooselike plots, a tale of deepest mystery presented under the direction of Miss Jean B. Elwell, former Central English teacher, which calls for more than the usual amount of down-right capable acting by all the principals involved.

It is chuck full of hair-raising occurrences and surprising events and a departure from the straight mystery play in that two murders, which baffled the authorities, are eventually solved by a spiritualistic medium.

The story is full of complication, and, of course, finally vindication and we have a system now whereby we automatically suspect the butler right at the start and then pay no more attention to "Who killed Spencer Lee and Edward Wales?" but simply sit back and thoroughly enjoy some really fine bits of emotional acting with the fine touch of comedy woven into the plot.

It may turn out that the butler didn't do it but it is a safe bet none of the suspected guests did either.

Ruth White, as Madame Rosalie LaGrange, the medium, who conducts a seance during which Edward Wales (Howell Huxton), is mysteriously stabbed to death, while in the act of receiving a spirit message designed to identify the slayer of his friend, Spencer Lee, has some excellent moments of acting of the emotional type, to which she does full justice.

Especially is this so when the culpability of her daughter, Helen O'Neill, as played by Sarah Bales, is apparently well established and the medium, in order to find the real murderer, stages a "fake" seance which brings about a confession and vindication for all the suspected persons, of which there are an abundance.

To reveal the entire plot would be to spoil the performance for Thursday evening when the play will be repeated with a majority of the female parts being taken by a second group of students.

Another praise-worthy bit of acting is done by Robert Wead, as Inspector Donohue, who conducts a searching investigation of both crimes in question, at the home of Roscoe Crosby (Glenn Hagler) where the latter tragedy took place.

Appearing the familiar guise of a detective, the inspector builds up such a chain of circumstantial evidence around one of the woman guests, that apparently there is little hope that a miscarriage of justice will be averted.

Sarah Bales, as Helen O'Neill whose engagement to Will Crosby (Hubert Glass), son of Roscoe Crosby, is announced before the killing of Wales, has a difficult character to portray and carries it off with well-merited honors.

Hubert Glass is well fitted for the part of the devoted lover of Miss O'Neill. Glenn Hagler and Howell Huxton also were selected for ideal parts and merit attention. The remainder of the cast including Elizabeth Alexander, as "Mrs. Crosby," Imogene Dean, as "Mary Eastwood," Bessie Bechtel, as "Helen Trent," Philip Sutton, as "Braddish Trent," Robert Butts, as "Howard Standish," Arthur Haverstick, as "Philip Mason," Emma LaMar, as "Elizabeth Erskine," Winifred Sheets, as "Grace Standish," Julian Doggett, as "Pollock," Esther Nash, as "The Maid," Homer Henrie, as "Sergeant Dunn," and Bruce Bickett, as "Doonan," come in for congratulations.

The play was produced through special arrangement with Samuel French, New York, and has its setting in the Italian room of Roscoe Crosby's home, from where the action never shifts.

The high school orchestra, under direction of E. G. Whitworth, played between acts.

Unless you are thrill-proof you will get a "kick" out of "The Third Chair." Don't mind the title. See it!

Marital Decalogues

THE REV. L. MORGAN CHAMBERS, OF WICHITA, KAN., WHO HAS DRAFTED EXPLICIT RULES FOR CONDUCT IN FOUR WALKS OF LIFE.

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927 WICHITA, Kan., Jun. 2.—Dr. L. Morgan Chambers, pastor of the St. Paul's Methodist Church in Wichita, has just completed a series of sermons which have drawn very favorable comment from all parts of the country. The series consisted of four new sets of commandments—for married men, wives, parents and preachers. The pastor accepted suggestions for the novel decalogues from persons scattered from Maine to California, and on the four Sunday nights he delivered the commandments hundreds of persons were turned away from his church.

For Husbands
1. Husband, obey your wife; then thou shalt live long in the land and dwell in peace.
2. Thou shalt not have one moral standard for thyself and another for thy wife. Thou art the stronger of the two and should set the example in moral stability.
3. Thou shalt not lie to thy wife, for she will surely find thee out.
4. Thou shalt not marry unless thou dost desire a home and family.
5. Remember that thou didst marry a human being and not an angel.
6. Thou shalt not complain to others that thy wife does not understand thee, for in this thou art an artful camoufler.

7. Thou shalt praise thy wife generously, for she has all the good qualities that made her winsome to thee in thy bachelor days.
8. Thou shalt not stay out at nights.
9. Thou shalt go 50-50 in all thy financial matters, for thy wife can do more with money than thou canst ever hope to do. Remember, she is not a hired servant in thy house.
10. Thou shalt not hold thy religion in thy wife's name. Thou art the religious head of the house.

For Wives

DELEGATES COMING HOME FROM CHURCH GENERAL ASSEMBLY

With the close of the Sixty-ninth General Assembly, United Presbyterian Church of North America, Washington, D. C., Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 p. m., the Rev. and Mrs. James P. Lytle, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Eavey, the men delegates to the assembly, are expected to arrive home this week.

Next year's meeting of the assembly will be held at St. Louis, Mo. The Washington assembly took decided action upon several important matters, with a lively debate on each issue. Proposals to rescind actions of previous assemblies which called for the publication of a psalter-hymnal were rejected by a large majority. A similar motion to rescind a resolution "leading to some definite conclusion" was taken toward union with the large Southern Presbyterian Church. A special committee was appointed to carry forward this work with similar appointed and authorized delegates of the southern church.

The matter which called forth expressions of keenest regret, according to word received from the Rev. Mr. Lytle, was the recommendation of the board of foreign mission to take steps immediately to reduce materially the missionary operations in Egypt, Abyssinia, the Sudan and northern India. The assembly spent much time in prayer and in considering proposals to avoid retrenchment, according to the Rev. Mr. Lytle. In the end, however, the recommendation was carried by a substantial majority vote.

The splendid offerings of the past year, much the largest among Protestant denominations failed by a considerable amount to meet the cost of operation. Financial reports from over the Presbyteries of the church, coast to coast, indicate that the present year will be one of continued financial embarrassment.

BIBLE THOUGHT

A COMPLETE DELIVERANCE—Deliver me from blood guiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation: and my tongue shall sing aloud of thy righteousness, Psalm 51:14.

PUSHING THROUGH TO THE FINISH

There are a great number of people who begin things and make a try at them for a little while, and then quit. The high school classes that are soon to graduate will show greatly depleted numbers in the majority of cities. Many young people enter educational classes, university extension and correspondence courses, and fail to finish.

It is natural that people should want to do a lot of experimenting and feeling their way along. Yet there are too many who get very easily discouraged. A few difficulties, and they are ready to throw up the thing they began upon. The people who really make a success of things look into any new project carefully before they go into it. They talk with people who have tried the thing out and they know pretty nearly what they are up against. But after they get into a thing, they stick to it "like a puppy to a root," as the old timers used to say.

Some young people in the schools probably feel discouraged about now. The year's work has been hard for them, and they are about ready to give up. They should reflect that each year of real effort makes the next year easier. If they quit, they are about like the mountain climber who gives up just as he is within reach of the top.

Some people are great on the enthusiasm with which they start community movements, and they make fervent speeches in behalf of such new ideas. But when it comes to doing the real work, they quit and pass the burden of the effort over to someone else.

Many people start in business, perhaps without thorough study of the situations they are up against. They run up against difficulties and they quit just as success was coming. A little more patient service, a little more advertising, might pull them over the hill. We need more finishers, in the schools and in all work and business.

REASON FOR GROWING FAME

Before the story of Charles Lindbergh's epic flight to France is completed it is probable that more than 300,000 articles on his doings and also sayings will be furnished his mother by a clipping bureau and the collection will be far and away the largest ever made possible on a single subject. The fact is that the "Lone Eagle" had not landed in France before these clippings included many thousands more words than were given in the newspapers to the discovery of the North Pole by Peary. The young man's ability to express himself in clean cut English and without verbosity adds to the value of his story.

One compact paragraph which reveals the genius of this modern Viking is that in which he disclaims credit for striking the Irish coast so accurately and says: "The fact that I came within three miles of my objective was a coincidence. If I had come within twenty miles that would have been navigation."

Fairness, thoughtfulness and a remarkable ability to exercise proper regard for the other person have been evident in all the quoted remarks of this amazing young American in Paris, even to the one-word acquiescence he gave the brunette who asked if she could kiss him.

DIFFERENT KIND OF PAGEANT

A Denver pastor's recent complaint that the beauty contest mania is running amuck in America, and that we have need for contests of brain or ability is a point well taken. The trouble seems to be that we are surfeited with beauty. Being a practical nation, we must put everything to work, and the only thing thus far found to do with beauties to make them earn their right to a place under the sun is to put them in beauty contests. As for staging a pageant of brains, we are at a loss to know how it could be arranged, even in Boston.

AIRPORTS AND CAPITALS

Postal authorities, planning for the future expansion of the air mail, say that Laredo or El Paso, Tex., are the logical clearing points for air mail routes to Central and South America.

Growth of this air transportation is bound to influence greatly the map of the future. Cities which are prepared to make the most of their air assets are the cities that will be on this map. Airports built now may be the pioneer settlements for the air capitals of the next generation.

SERIAL STORY

Xenia Gazette Office:
Will you kindly print in your paper the last installment of "Her Man?" The last chapter you printed was in the evening of May 23 and it was not finished. One reading the story would naturally want to read the end of it. I have heard several others express the same desire.

Respectfully,
A Reader of the Gazette.

Editor's Note:
Although no "Finis" marked the end of the last chapter published, the final installment of "Her Man," popular serial story of Beatrice Burton in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican was, unfortunately, all of the story received. Although it is impossible to resume the story, it has been ascertained that the correct ending should have shown that Randy Phelps and his wife Sylvia, parched up their marital bark and again set out to the Isle of Future Happiness, all mistakes of both regretted and forgiven by the other.

OUR GREATEST ENVOY

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

WHO IS YOUR MEANEST ACQUAINTANCE?

Maybe you have observed that nearly everybody has a candidate from among his acquaintances for the post of Meanest Man on Earth.

A few nights ago a group of four or five of us were sitting about philosophizing about philosophizing in a consequential affair and somebody suggested that we hold a little informal contest to see which one of us had come in contact with the meanest man.

We neglected to provide any prize for the winner of the contest, and I'm sorry, for I believe my man was a formidable entry. At any rate, I'll tell here my story: Some years ago when I was reporting the daily doings in the county court house for a big newspaper, a queer case came up in which a woman was holding a baby as a sort of hostage for a debt. A young mother had died leaving a baby about a year old. The father of the baby, unable to care for it himself, arranged to have it looked after by its grandmother—his mother-in-law. But he had failed to pay her the weekly fee agreed upon. In due course, he was about to marry again, re-establish his home, and have his child with him once more.

The baby had become the one bright spot in its grandmother's life and she was naturally reluctant to give it up. Her ultimatum was that she would not let it go out of her home and care until the father paid what he had agreed upon.

Well, the court ruled that while she ought to be paid whatever was coming to her, it is against the spirit of the law to hold a baby or any other human being as hostage for debt. He therefore gave the father permission to go over and take the child from the poor griet-stricken grandmother's arms. This the man promptly did. His new wife, successor to the grandmother's daughter, was at his side and she was a rather pleasant looking woman. The grandmother turned a tearful face to her and said:

"Will you promise me always to be good to that little baby? It's my daughter's child and the only thing in this world that I have left to love."

The young woman solemnly

promised that she would love and cherish the babe as if it were her own, and I have an idea that she meant to keep her word.

Then the old grandmother made one other request—this of her son-in-law. "Won't you let me keep the baby's mittens to remember it by?" she asked. "I knitted them myself and they will be the only little keepsake left."

They were fastened together by a long piece of heavy yarn suspended from the child's neck. The father's answer was to take the mittens and tuck them into his overcoat pocket, as if fearful that the woman might snatch them away.

"Should say not!" he said, with a sneering curl of his lip. And walked out of the court-room, to the accompaniment of hisses.

Who's YOUR candidate?

How to Achieve Beauty

EXERCISES FOR GENERAL REDUCING

Yesterday I told you of various rules you should observe in regard to the quantity and kind of food to eat if overweight is your problem and to-day I am going into the subject of exercise as a necessary complement to this sort of a diet.

I will outline below various simple exercises which if consistently followed together with the faithful observance of the diet regulations, I have given you so far this week cannot but bring results provided, of course, the cause for your being overweight is not due to some organic trouble.

Through exercise excessive fat is used up and disposed of. And it is likewise through lack of exercise that fat accumulates and as a possible consequence serious chronic diseases may have their beginning.

Vigorous walking is one of the best kind of exercises you can indulge in and four to five miles a day is none too much for those who would keep their bodies in fit condition.

The daily warm bath before retiring which is most important for every woman from both a health and beauty standpoint assumes double importance when one is on a reducing regime as it is a very substantial aid in assisting elimination, through the skin, of poisons that have accumulated during the day. A cold sponge bath or shower in the morning is very invigorating and beneficial in helping you start the day right.

The following exercises practiced upon arising before an open window while breathing deeply and rhythmically of the fresh morning air, after you have had either a large tumbler of cold water or a cup of warm water to which the juice of half a lemon has been added, will help give the desired symmetry to the figure.

Counting helps to get the rhythm and puts more "snap" into the movements. Do the exercises slowly at first, gradually increasing speed and number of times each day.

Place the rod or stick at back of neck with arms extended along the ends of rod—twist the body to the right, then return to starting position and twist to the left then back to position again. Be sure to keep the heels on the floor so that there is an even twist from ankles to shoulder.

Stand at attention with arms extended to end of rod. Extend the arms forward and at the same time lift the knee so that it almost touches the rod, pointing toe downward. Then return to position before repeating same exercise with the left knee, also pointing toe downward.

Place the rod or stick at back of neck with arms extended along the ends of rod—twist the body to the right, then return to starting position and twist to the left then back to position again. Be sure to keep the heels on the floor so that there is an even twist from ankles to shoulder.

Start at attention with hands extended toward end of rod. Extend the arms forward at the same time bending the knees and lowering your body to the heels to a squatting position—return to position. Go through this exercise slowly endeavoring to keep evenly balanced.

Hold rod high over the head with the arms with of body apart. One bend to the right at the waist, keeping arms in a straight line with the sides of the chest—return to position. Then bend to left in the same manner—return to position. Lift rod high over head with arms extended. Swing arms forward and to the right bending body at waist until rod touches the floor just outside the right foot. Then swing upward to starting position with rod over the head and swing forward and downward to the left, touching the rod to the floor outside of left foot, then swing back to the starting position.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"It might be said that the silk hat era in our church life was in many respects a dull and conventional one. Men, or some men anyhow, went to church with a silk hat and prayed into it. But they went to church—that was the main thing. And it was the church-going generation which won the war. I am for the silk hat every day in the week."—Rev. E. L. Macassay.

"Education is the remedy for most ills, and if young women about to marry were given instructions on how to run a home, taught to cook, and sew and make useful things, there probably wouldn't be many divorces. Men can't be expected to look at their wives through rose-colored glasses when they are making life a continual unhappy struggle."—Judge Joseph Burke.

"That Christian is ignorant who does not know or endeavor to know what separates him denominationally from his fellow Christians, and to discover the real unity of the spirit that does exist. It is a solemn duty of Christians to look upon every Christian of every name as a brother."—Bishop Charles H. Brent.

"The wickedness of youth has been one of the most recent topics of comment. They do have their faults. But in such a marvelous feat as Lindbergh's successful flight there is portrayed certain traits of character which are predominant in young people."—Rev. C. Everett Wagner.

"Of all things that Lindbergh's great feat demonstrated, the greatest was to show us that a person could still get the entire front page without murdering anyone."—Will Rogers.

"Just as it is advocated that we apply reason instead of force in solving the differences among nations, we should also apply reason in moral disarmament and settle differences among individuals."—C. C. Romalser.

"If the wisdom of the people demands capital punishment I believe the execution should follow more closely on the verdict than it does in this country."—Justice Townsend Scudder.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A.F. Currier

NEURALGIA

This term means pain in a nerve or nerves, and in reality may not be distinguished, at least, in severe cases, from neuritis; for there is probably no severe case of neuralgia in which there are not more or less inflammatory changes in the structure of the nerve which is the seat of pain. Neuralgia is often designated by the name of the nerve in which the pain is seated, the facial, the sciatic and the intercostal being most frequently attacked. But neuralgia may also be symptomatic of a distinct disease like gout, rheumatism, mineral poisoning, malaria, diabetes or excessive use of tobacco.

It may also be reflected from disease of the eyes, the teeth or the internal organs. Neuralgic pain may be stabbing or darting, but it may also be dull and aching, burning or tingling, gouging or boring, or suggestive of crawling insects.

It may also be intermittent or paroxysmal, variable in severity, lasting a few minutes at a time or hours and continuing at short intervals for days, months or years. It may be so severe that the patient will lose reason, and self-control and take his life. It is most intense at the surface, but there may be soreness along the entire track of the nerve. It may come suddenly or be preceded by soreness and stiffness; it may come in connection with malaria and seem to be a part of it. It may be accompanied by a feeling of coldness, or an eruption on the skin, or with muscular twitching or nausea and vomiting, or the hair may fall out, or turn grey.

An attack may have no apparent exciting cause, or it may follow grief, fright or any intense emotion, a draught of air, or fatigue or severe cold. It is more common in cold than in warm weather, in women than in men, and is most frequent in middle life.

Its victims are usually those of nervous temperament with neurotic inheritance. Its treatment depends largely upon its cause. Those who live in cold, damp malarial, or otherwise unhealthy climates, may be cured by a change of residence to a location which is more salubrious.

Dietetic treatment is also important, especially for those who have abused their digestive apparatus by excesses in food and drink or even by using food that was not suited to them.

The pain may be relieved by so simple a measure as giving the digestive organs a rest or a comparative rest.

Surgical operations are sometimes curative, including the stretching of the sciatic nerve, removal of a portion of the facial nerve or even of the ganglion from which it originates, or by injecting alcohol into it.

The painful surface may be blistered or cauterized, rubbed with stimulating liniments or exposed to X-rays, light rays or galvanism.

There are also many drugs which are of the greatest value, including the coal tar preparations, iron, arsenic, strychnin, phosphorus, quinine and aconite.

But it may happen that all these measures will be resisted and the case will prove the despair of the patient and his friends and of the doctors who are powerless to cure him.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
E. B.: 1.—An X-ray picture shows inflammation of the gall bladder. What is the general course which the disease takes? Medicines have given me temporary relief, but the pain is particularly severe with the recurring monthly illness.

2.—Ought I to consult a specialist?
Answer.—It is very apt to get worse. One attack with severe pain is but the predecessor of others and medicines are merely palliatives. The best plan, now that you know there is gall bladder disease, is to have the gall bladder opened and drained.

3.—I think it would be wise and prudent.

The Theatre

French papers are sniffing sarcastically over America's continued rejection of their books and plays.

When Maurice Deobra's book, "The Madonna of the Sleepings" was withdrawn from the book-stalls recently, France was mildly surprised. French critics found the novel entertaining and amusing and the sales were enormous, proving that the majority of the people also approved.

The banning of the much discussed play "The Captive" was ridiculed and not understood. One paper plainly stated that American play censors showed a lack of understanding and intelligence in hating a highly moral play, written truthfully. "The Captive" after a two year run is still playing to packed houses in Paris.

The French Press says that "American's shamed feeling" puzzles them. "What," they are exclaiming, "does this statue of liberty actually stand for?"

Appreciation of good music is growing in the United States, according to the directors of the Philharmonic Society of New York, who point to the steadily increasing attendance at concerts as proof of their assertion. The demand for seats at next season's concerts are 25 per cent over his date last year, according to Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the board of Public interest in the forthcoming season has been heightened by announcement that the Philharmonic Society has secured the services of Arturo Toscanini as orchestra leader for the next five years.

"It is no exaggeration that the engagement of Mr. Toscanini as a regular conductor not only marks an epoch in musical arts in this country, but it is also one of the most important achievements in the history of the society," Mr. Mackay declared.

In the very near future Mr. Mackay expects the Philharmonic artists will play regularly to "sold out" houses.

SPORTSMEN TO MEET IN CLEVELAND SOON AT SUMMER MEETING

COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—Sportsmen from all parts of Ohio will gather in Cleveland June 3 to attend the summer convention of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, and to discuss fish and game water conservation and reforestation problems. The proposed conservation department coequal with other state departments to take the place of the fish and game division of the Department of Agriculture will also be discussed. Both the Isaac Walton League and the League of Ohio Sportsmen are agreed that there should be a separate department for conservation in Ohio.

One of the leading speakers representing the farmer's interests will be N. E. Shaw, editor of Ohio Stockman and Farmer. The sportsmen plan to have the farmers fully represented in the proposed department which will neither create new jobs nor increase expense of operation. The sportsmen would pay the entire cost with their license money without cost to taxpayers.

Resolutions opposing the opening of the Roosevelt game preserve as a public picnic grounds or for tourists are expected to be adopted. The sportsmen want the preserve kept as a sanctuary for big game and want automobiles, campfires, and picnic parties kept out as it was established for game purposes with their license money, they declare.

HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL Fielder Should Play Infield

AS TOLD BY STARS OF THE GAME

By BOB FOTHERGILL

I have found that playing the outfield is far from the snap many people believe it to be. It involves much more than the mere catching of fly balls. An outfielder should be ready to run in any direction. Like an infielder, he is likely to find himself strong in some respects and weak in others. When this is the case, he should be alert to remedy the flaw.

Probably the most difficult part of outfielding is the stunt of sprinting backwards to pocket a line drive that is smashed directly over fielder's head. If a gardener can master that particular task, I think the other feats like running to make catches at his right or left and for the flies in front of him, become a natural tendency.

Therefore I would advise the aspiring fly-chaser to practice diligently going backwards on the dead run for such smashes. After a while he should develop an instinct that will prompt him to turn around precisely at that fraction of a second the ball is ready to fall into his glove.

In conclusion, I suggest that those who are ambitious to improve their performance on grounders, take part in infield practice sessions.

The knack of being able to field ground balls, in faultless style, is an invaluable aid to the gardener, because it stops the base runners from running wild when they realize that the outfielder is also a good "infielder."

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, June 2.—The afternoon Lindbergh was due to arrive in Paris thousands of persons were grouped outside a newspaper office in Times Square. Bulletins were slow and the watchers contented themselves with discussing various phases of the flight. There existed widely varying opinion with respect to the difference of time between New York and the French capital. The prevailing impression was that three hours was the breach. Some said five, and a few thought eight. One woman insisted that thirty-six hours was the exact difference, and said she could prove it by the afternoon paper in which she had read it. She left to purchase a paper and was not seen thereafter.

"Able's Irish Rose" is about to enter the sixth year of its existence and coincidentally found its way into Joe Leblang's curate ticket agency.

When Broadway announces that a show has been Leblanged, it means the end is in sight.

In the case of "Able," however, the tradition was upset. Shortly after the show opened, in 1922, it looked as if the production would be a failure. Mr. Leblang was hastily notified, and preparations were begun for the obsequies. Then something happened. What it was no one has ever been able to find out. Business picked up and Leblang stepped aside. But so far as old-timers on Broadway can recall it is the only show that has been in and out of Leblang's clutches in the course of a continuous run.

If the play lasts until early July it will hang up a new world's record for a continuous run, passing the mark of 2,238 set by the London production of "Chu Chin Chow."

There is more nonsense peddled by "special writers" about New York's night clubs than any other feature of the city's life.

The night club is a retreat where a jaded gentleman in quest of a "thrill" may, for a consideration out of all proportion to the return, traffic in hoodlum affection and phony hooch while his sensibilities are lulled by delirium tremens music termed "jazz."

It is the haunt of the hopeless, the rendezvous of the rouabout, the roost of the out-of-town "sucker" with more money than brains, and of the native single gentleman and his current wife.

It is also the haunt of the latest manifestation of the breed known as "columnists"—young men with puffy eyes and a dimmed vision who tout the proprietors daily in their papers, for a "consideration," and think they're seeing life.

The average New York night club is the equivalent of the old-time "joint," the name of which,

Unworried

MRS. WARD T. VAN ORMAN

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927 AKRON, O., June 2.—"Men must work and women must weep" may apply to sailors and their wives, but not to balloonists and their mates. Mrs. Ward T. Van Orman, wife of the world's champion balloon pilot, never worries while her husband is in the air.

He cured her of ever feeling anxiety for him by taking her for a ride. On the trip the two were in the air for eight hours, flying from Ohio into New York, and when the world's champion decided to come down his wife begged him to keep on going.

"No matter what happens Ward would know what to do," Mrs. Van Orman says. "I have followed him in every race. I have maps at the house and he sends me a telegram just before he leaves and others from the air."

"In the 1924 national race Mrs. Carl K. Wollam and I knew our husbands had won before they knew it themselves," Van Orman and Wollam were partners on that race.

In the 1925 race the two were in touch with their wives by radio while their wives were in touch with them by means of dropped telegrams. Ten thousand feet in the air on a night as black as the inside of an ink well "Van" and "Wolly" turned on their receiving set. A voice spoke from the corner of the car. It was Mrs. Van Orman's.

Then Mrs. Wollam's voice was heard. The two were broadcasting good luck messages from Cleveland. On the second day out the Akron flyers were about to land, believing they had the race cinched, when word came to them over the radio that Capt. Harry E. Honeywell, veteran St. Louis pilot, was still in the air. Accordingly they tightened their belts another notch, stayed up in the air and went on to victory.

Radio had won for them just as it did in 1924. In that race they picked up warnings of a heavy storm ahead while only a few hours under way. While other contestants floundered in squalls later in the race the Akronites hurtled the storm by ascending to 18,000 feet and swept on to victory.

In the 1926 international race from Brussels, Belgium, radio again played an important part. Lost in a heavy fog Van Orman and Walter W. Morton of Akron got their bearings from messages broadcast from Bremen, Germany, and laid a course which carried them to Solvesborg, Sweden, and a world championship.

Van Orman and Wollam were the only team carrying receiving sets in the 1924 national race. In 1925 and 1926 several more sets appeared.

COLORFUL PAGEANT FEATURES CEDARVILLE CEDAR DAY PARTY

A colorful pageant during which Miss May McKay, New Burlington, was crowned the 1927 May Queen by Miss Lena Hastings, Cedarville, on whom the honor was bestowed last year, featured the annual Cedar Day exercises held by Cedarville College students on the college campus Wednesday morning.

A large and attentive crowd witnessed the pageant. The students participating were garbed in brilliant costumes of every hue.

The exercises opened at 10 o'clock with instrumental music furnished by Miss Helen Huff, Kenneth Little and Willard Thuma, after which the Cedar Day oration was delivered by Day Kennedy.

Three vocal selections by a girls' chorus of twelve voices was followed by the dedication of the Cedar tree, planted every year, March 1, of the class of 1927, making the dedication talk.

The impressive procession featured by the entrance of the May Queen came next in which all students and a number of children participated. After the march to the throne, Miss McKay was officially crowned May Queen amid elaborate ceremonies.

During the procession, Dr. J. A. Talcott, former army aviator, who is supervisor of music at the college, and who still makes numerous trips in the air, piloted an airplane above the campus and dropped greetings to the May Queen.

The greetings took the form of an emblem of the college colors, which was delivered to Miss McKay during the march.

The beautiful May pole dance in front of the throne preceded the pageant, which told a story of pirate days in which villagers along the English seashore danced and made merry after finding treasure chest abandoned by a pirate band.

The pageant opened with the dance of the china dishes, the dance of the jewels, the silk scarf, Mantillos, cameos and ended with a Spanish dance. A comical stunt by the boys of the college in which the type of football as "mother would have it played" was shown, was also the occasion for great merriment.

During the festivities, gold baseball charms were presented to President W. R. McChesney and F. A. Jurket, member of the faculty, by the college athletic association and Coach R. M. Borst was given a gold golf stick.

Committee in charge of the exercises was composed of Mrs. R. M. Borst, and Misses Kathryn Hughes, Helen Huff and Irene Shannon.

In the afternoon, the exercises closed with a baseball game between the college alumni and regular varsity and a regulation game between the varsity and O. S. and S. O. Home which was won by Cedarville, by a score of 12 to 2.

COLLEGE SENIORS OFFER CLASS PLAY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

A large audience witnessed the presentation of the unusual play, "Captain Applejack," by the senior class of Cedarville College, under the direction of Mrs. R. M. Borst, wife of the school's athletic director, at the village opera house Wednesday night, culminating Cedar Day exercises.

Robert Turnbull, as Ambrose Applejohn, took the leading part and filled the difficult role in a capable manner.

The other members of the cast, who are deserving of special consideration, include: John Rockhold, as "Lush," the butler; Martha Dean, as "Happy Fairs," Applejohn's ward; Ruth Burbick, as "Mrs. Agatha Whopcomb"; Betty Creswell, as "Anna Valeska, Russian dancer; Lois Manor, as "Mrs. Pengard"; Willard Barlow, as "Ivan Borolsky"; Malcolm Turner, as "Bennett"; and Fred Willis, as "Johnny Jason."

ROYAL APPROVAL

The Hoover sweeper is now entitled to wear the Royal coat of arms of the British royal family through its adoption for use in Buckingham Palace and other residences of the English reigning family.

The selection of the Hoover ball charms were presented to President W. R. McChesney and F. A. Jurket, member of the fac-

Mary. The Hoover is distributed here by Galloway and Cherry, Greene County agents.

The Roving Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

The Ritzie stunt makes the hit. And thereby Mayville lights are lit. "What are we going to call our stunt when we get it finished?" asked Marty, resting on his carpenter bench after ten minutes of strenuous sawing.

"The Ritzie knock-down stand," suggested Rag.

"Leave it to Rag to always be ready with an answer," laughed Marty. "It sounds like a pretty good name to me. What about it, fellow Ritzies?"

The other three members of the Ritzie band, Patsy, Tag and Betty Ann, agreed that it was a "dandy" name. So it was decided that the stunt which they were preparing for the Mayville carnival should be called the "Ritzie knock-down stand."

Marty and the twins had made the wooden rack upon which the hinged-on dollies stood ready to be knocked over by a carnival customer, on the general dimensions of six feet high and four feet wide. The dolls were made from sticks of hardwood, ten inches long and one and one-half inches thick which Marty carefully cut at his carpenter bench. When all nine sticks were fastened according to measure, he fastened ordinary door hinges to them as shown in the illustration.

Patsy then took her turn and soon had transformed the sticks into cocky looking dolls. She made the heads by stuffing muslin with cotton and gluing the rounded balls to the tops of the sticks. She then painted in the features and made funny wigs with unraveled rope. Betty Ann became a dressmaker and a tailor for the dolls, she dressed the lady dolls in gay colors and flowing ribbons, and put Ritzie flag to the top of each beam. These she had made in her own room so as to be a surprise for the boys. She had scarcely had time to do a bit of important painting when Marty and the twins came dashing into the shop all dressed up in their Sunday clothes.

Seeing the gay bunting, and the new Ritzie flags, they stared first at the doll rack and then at Patsy.

"Gee, it looks great!" said Marty. "Just like a girl to think of dressing it up to look like something. I say, Pat, what are these?" Marty was staring at the freshly painted names under the dolls.

Patsy laughed and said, "I told you you would find out the night of the carnival. That was the secret that Betty and I have been laughing about."

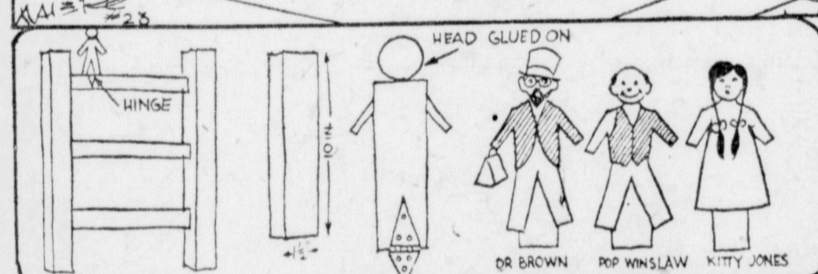

The twins and Marty were at last beginning to understand. They had thought the girls were making just ordinary dolls, but now they discovered that they had been making character dolls instead.

Under one doll, wearing long baggy trousers and shiny black hair, was painted the name Joe, the Shiek. And the funny part of it was that it did look just like Joe Mathers, who was always to be seen lounging about the drug stores and ice cream parlors.

There was Dr. Brown with his little satchel, Pop Winslow with his merry smile and bald head, and Kitty Jones with her long, black pig tails. Indeed, everyone of the nine wooden dolls represented some well known person in the village of Mayville.

"By Jove, that's clever," said Marty. "Do you think the people will object?"

"Of course not," assured Patsy.

allured suits on the men dolls. She used crepe paper for her material, because she found that this could be pasted, pinned and ruffled into shape. She had quite a time with the tailored trousers for the men until she found that two strips of crepe paper, cut the shape of trouser legs, and pasted in front of the stick, made the doll look as if it had two perfectly good legs.

Patsy and Betty Ann had hit upon a scheme which they were sure would cause a lot of merriment the night of the carnival and the boys found them giggling to themselves every now and then over some secret that they wouldn't tell.

"What is so funny about a couple of wooden dolls?" asked Tag quite provoked not to be let in on the secret.

"You'll find out the night of the carnival," teased Patsy, and that was all the boys could find out. When that night finally arrived, Patsy slipped out to the carpenter shop, where the doll rack stood in readiness to be carried to the town hall, and put on the finishing touches. She wound the two tall side beams with bunting that her mother had gotten from one of the committee ladies, and tacked a

"I think they'll be flattered instead."

Whether or not Patsy was right, and we'll hope for the Ritzies' sake that she was, the Ritzie knock-down stand was the hit of the Mayville carnival. It kept Marty and the twins busy keeping their customers in lines as they came up to buy balls and throw at the hinged-on dolls. A dark curtain had been placed back of the doll rack so that when a doll was hit, it would fall back against the curtain, only to come bouncing up again on its door hinge.

"Watch out there, Pop Winslow," one of the customers would cry. "Here's where I take a swat at you," and away would whiz the ball toward the Pop Winslow wooden doll.

When the carnival was over and the records completed, it was discovered that the Ritzie knock-down stand had taken in more money than any of the other features, and as the money was to go towards the Mayville street lights, the program committee felt indebted to the Ritzies and sent them a note of appreciation.

Yes, the Ritzies had made a real name for themselves in Mayville.

PHYSICIAN ASSAILS "FREE CLINICS" AS MENACE TO DOCTORS

era, that of the physiological, resulting in combating of microbes. The protective resources of the patient was the growth of the latter, the physician said.

A tirade against the growth of "free clinics" and "endowment institutions" was made in the address of Dr. L. L. Bigelow, Columbus, president Ohio State Medical Association. "We will see the effect of such institutions and their encroachment upon our precepts here in Ohio within the next few years," he warned the medical men. "They are outside agencies taking the work belonging to us. They are usurping the place held rightfully by us."

"They are part of a gigantic propaganda and an outgrowth of the American genius for organization. This country has a passion for standardization, which is changing the character of the people. There is little place left for the individual."

Dr. Bigelow quoted Prof. Arthur Schlesinger, former Xenian, professor of history at Harvard University, in a word picture of the "Standard American," showing lack of individualism. "We don't have to do our own thinking today," the church tells us how to worship, the community guides our morals and the politicians dictate our politics.

"This tendency is bound to effect the medical profession. Everyone is entitled to the benefits of modern medicine, irrespective of his power to pay. Life expectancy is greater than ever. This accounts for the increase in population in the face of a lower birthrate."

"In Shakespeare's time, the average life for a person was twenty-one years. With the prolonging of life expectancy, birth control is to be the result. It is a problem we will have to make up our minds about some day."

"There always have been and always will be three classes of people—the wealthy, middle class and proletariat. We will have them until the end of time and it is essential that their balance of power be not disturbed," Dr. Bigelow went on to say.

"Free Clinics" and "endowment institutions" that are being introduced into the national life of America, is resulting in a communistic organization like that of Russia. It is time we stop talking 'state medicine' and talk about Communism. When medicine is socialized we might as well start the headlines.

"The best guarantee of a healthy future is an independent, happy, and prosperous medical profession. Not a Sovietized organization without ingenuity and humanity," were among his closing statements.

About 115 people of the medical profession in Clinton, Fayette, Highland, Warren, and Greene, attended the meeting, at which the Greene County Medical Society was held on its "birthday." A parade by the Home Battalion preceded the banquet.

Dr. A. C. Messenger, president of the Greene County Medical Society, presided. Brown, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, Xenia, Dr. Messenger presented Dr. B. H. McClellan, Xenia, who acted as toastmaster. Dr. McClellan traced the change in the local medical society and the formation of the organization on the ground that "the way to get along and to be happy in our work was to have a real fellowship in the membership. Quibbling and quarrels are taboo."

Dr. McClellan introduced Col. T. E. Andrews, superintendent of the O. S. and S. O. Home, who said: "The Home owes much to the doctors of Xenia in the growth of the institution. With their assistance we are trying, in this school, to do as well if not better than the parents of the children could."

Dr. J. E. Griewe, Cincinnati, dean of the medical and surgical staff of the Home, was introduced. He declared that the health of the institution is as good as any in the state. "The children are being reared to be worthwhile in life, not only from the school standpoint but from that of the physical. The state owes a debt of gratitude to the local medical men for their devotion to this institution."

SAMMY MANDELL IS UNDER BOND AFTER BLOW PROVES FATAL

Ring Opponent Dies From Broken Neck During Bout

KANSAS CITY, Kan., June 2.—A preliminary hearing for Sammy Mandell, lightweight boxing champion, was continued today until next Tuesday pending an investigation into the death of Steve Adams who collapsed last night in the second round of a ten round fight.

Mandell is under $5,000 bond on a charge of vagrancy.

Coroner J. W. Hayward, of Wyandotte County, declared he did not know whether an inquest would be called.

An inspection of the ropes of the ring was to be made today to determine if improper construction could have caused Adams' death by throwing him forward, after Mandell sent a sharp left jab to the stomach. Ringside fans told authorities of instances where fighters have rebounded toward the center of the ring, when thrown against the ropes. Adams' neck was broken, according to a report of physicians.

Adams died several minutes after Mandell had sent a hard left to the solar plexus at the opening of the second round. Adams staggered into a clinch. They were separated and were sparring lightly when suddenly Adams collapsed, falling on the ropes.

Dr. L. D. Mable, physician for the American Legion, where whose auspices the fight was being staged, rushed to the ring. Several other physicians, spectators at the fight, assisted Dr. Mable. A pulmotor was brought into play, but all aid proved futile.

Dr. J. W. Hayward, county coroner, performed an autopsy and reported Adams' neck was broken. The second and third cervical vertebrae were dislocated and pressing against the spinal cord, he said.

A. J. Eagle, referee known professionally as Walter Bates, declared that all of Mandell's blows had been clean.

Mandell ripped into Adams in the first round and plainly displayed a superior brand of aggressiveness. Adams fought back, however, and held up his part of the battle to the end of the round.

At the opening of the second round, Mandell again rushed into Adams, punching him in the face. When Mandell sunk the solar plexus blow into Adams, Adams staggered a little but went into a clinch and the fighters exchanged light blows in a corner of the ring.

About twenty seconds later, however, Adams, free of his opponent, whirled and sank across the ropes.

Adams had been examined by Dr. Mable yesterday afternoon, and was pronounced in perfect physical condition. He was 24 years old. He weighed in at 136 pounds. Mandell weighed in at 138 pounds.

Mandell, sometimes called the "silk of fistiana," is known more of a boxer than a heavy puncher. His record shows he won more fights by decisions than knockouts. He won the title July 3, last year, by outpointing Rocky Kansas in Chicago.

PEKING DEMANDS RECALL OF JAPS

PEKING, June 2.—A sharp demand that Japan recall the 2,000 troops she has landed at Tientsin, was voiced in a note of protest sent to Tokyo today by Wellington Koo, acting foreign minister of the Peking government.

The note declared the landing of the Japanese troops was an infringement of Chinese sovereignty, and a violation of treaty rights. It stated that unless the troops were withdrawn China would not be responsible for any misunderstanding which might arise.

COAL OPERATORS IN MEET AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., June 2.—An important meeting of the Ohio Coal Operators' Association was scheduled here today at which the recent interstate commerce commission ruling, reducing freight rates twenty cents per ton for Ohio coal shipments to the northwest, may be discussed and future action determined in connection with the shutdown of coal mines in this state.

Association officers, have announced unofficially that the ruling would not affect the strike situation.

UNITED STATES READY TO ACT IN CHINA

ANTIOCH STUDENT DISAPPEARS; NOTE INDICATES BOY PLANNED DEPARTURE

George Frederick Adhead, 22, Stockport, Eng., special student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, for two and one-half years, disappeared from the college last Friday leaving a brief note indicating his intention of making a fresh start in life in some other place.

The student's absence did not become known until Tuesday when his roommate, William Holt, found the note in their room in the boys' dormitory and notified college officials.

The incident was kept quiet for a day and announcement of the disappearance then made to the student body by President Arthur E. Morgan at chapel exercises Wednesday morning.

College officials can ascribe no motive for Adhead's act other than that he had been in poor health since he entered college and lately had been under the observation of a physician.

Faculty members first learned of his absence when he failed to appear for classes Tuesday morning. Because Saturday, Sunday and Monday were holidays, no significance was attached to his absence during the intervening period, as it was believed he had left for a few days vacation during the holidays.

Officials are hopeful the student may return and for that reason his parents in England, will not be notified for a few days. Meanwhile, the police at Dayton and Springfield were notified immediately to make inquiries but asked to observe secrecy in the investigation.

Adhead's status at college has been satisfactory and his scholastic rating good but the youth had been in a somewhat depressed state of mind for a long period, according to President Morgan, and faculty members kept him under surveillance.

Adhead had also had previous conversations with school friends indicating he was turning the idea over in his mind of severing connection with the college, destroying all traces and making a new start in some other part of the country.

College officials, while maintaining an attitude of secrecy, admitted it was known to them that Adhead had had personal disappointments. He appeared in as good spirits as usual Friday, they declared.

It was disclosed that Adhead left untouched money on deposit in a bank, but left instructions that it should be forwarded to his home in England. He had received a letter from home last week in which was enclosed a ten pound note, indicating he was equipped with funds when he disappeared.

President Morgan had had several private talks with the boy in which he expressed his intention of leaving college, but in their last conversation, Adhead had apparently re-considered his intention.

The program mapped out by this government does not call for any last ditch defense of Peking, such as has been suggested in London and Tokyo, in the event local government in that part of China collapses completely. The American forces are under strict orders to remain neutral as between the various contending Chinese factions and to take no part in the fighting excepting in the defense of American citizens.

Foremost among the considerations of this government is that its nationals shall be protected and that there must be no repetition of the Nanking affair of March 24. Being of the opinion that Americans can best be protected at Tientsin or Shanghai rather than at Peking, the government has already prepared to evacuate the legation in the latter city to a port city. Americans in north China have already been advised to withdraw to Tientsin and most of them have done so.

It is also hoped that removal to the legation will eliminate a source of danger to American interests inasmuch as any violation of the legation by the Chinese would undoubtedly serve to draw the United States into the Chinese civil war.

Secretary of State Kellogg revealed today that plans for the evacuation of the legation were first considered as early as two months ago, or about the time when the split in the Nationalist party took place. As reported by the International News Service at the time, he took the position that the Cantoneses split was not as serious as it appeared on the surface. Accordingly the government made ready to meet the new emergency which was expected to follow as the Nationalists moved northward.

In addition to winning the national balloon race four times, Van Orman, with Morton as aide, won the 1926 international balloon race. E. J. Hill, pilot of the Detroit Flying Club's No. 3, took second place in the national event this year, when he brought his balloon to earth near Skowhegan, Me., 665 miles from the starting point.

Finishing third, Captain W. E. Kenner, piloting Army No. 3, landed at Biddeford, Me., 602 miles from Akron.

The Akron chapter of the National Aeronautical Association, through Van Orman's fourth national victory, will have permanent possession of the Litchfield trophy, a cup offered three years ago by Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Under the rules of Litchfield's offer, the cup remains in the possession of the city, whose aeronauts win it three times in succession.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO DESERT PEKING; MARINES ARE MOVED

Policy Of Protecting Americans Will Be Carried Out

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The United States is prepared to act with exceeding swiftness in coping with the new crisis which suddenly has arisen in China.

Plans for this action were drawn up weeks ago and were based on the well-grounded belief that despite the dissension in the Cantoneses ranks the Nationalist movement was by no means dead and would probably be heard from again in the near future.

The program mapped out by this government does not call for any last ditch defense of Peking, such as has been suggested in London and Tokyo, in the event local government in that part of China collapses completely. The American forces are under strict orders to remain neutral as between the various contending Chinese factions and to take no part in the fighting excepting in the defense of American citizens.

Hill, pilot of the Detroit Flying Club's No. 3, took second place in the national event this year, when he brought his balloon to earth near Skowhegan, Me., 665 miles from the starting point.

Finishing third, Captain W. E. Kenner, piloting Army No. 3, landed at Biddeford, Me., 602 miles from Akron.

The Akron chapter of the National Aeronautical Association, through Van Orman's fourth national victory, will have permanent possession of the Litchfield trophy, a cup offered three years ago by Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Under the rules of Litchfield's offer, the cup remains in the possession of the city, whose aeronauts win it three times in succession.

PHYSICIAN ASSAILS "FREE CLINICS" AS MENACE TO DOCTORS

State Medical Association Head Flays Endowment Institutions—New York Surgeon Heard As Medical Society Celebrates

LONDON, June 2.—Adverse weather reports delayed Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight from the Kenly aerodrome to Paris this afternoon.

Although Lindbergh had flown across the Atlantic ocean in unfavorable weather, officers at Kenly advised against his taking off for Paris until the skies cleared a bit.

Fog was reported all along the Paris route. Some rain is falling in Paris, although there is little rain in England.

At 4 o'clock Lindbergh was still awaiting further weather reports of conditions over the English Channel. The weather is now somewhat improved and may clear in time for Lindbergh to make an evening flight to Paris.

After attending a reception at Croydon where civil pilots presented him with a memento, Captain Lindbergh arrived at the Kenly aerodrome outside London at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Lindbergh left the American embassy at 2:10 for Croydon, accompanied by Mrs. Houghton, Counselor for Sterling and Colonel Kenyon Joyce. Lindbergh was given a greeting wherever he was recognized and a considerable crowd had gathered about the aerodrome at Croydon to give the flier a farewell.

The young American had acquired a smart English flying suit for his journey back to Paris, consisting of a long brown leather coat and gray breeches. His baggage consisted of a small suitcase and a hat box.

Capt. Lindbergh's public engagements ended with the dinner of the American societies last night. He retired at the embassy shortly after midnight, admitting that the constant round of public appearances, speeches, handshaking, autographing, interviews and elaborate foods was beginning to tire him.

Capt. Lindbergh's departure was intensely disappointing to a number of hostesses who have been besieging the embassy for permission to have him as their guest at private parties. Among them was Lady Astor, who had already obtained Capt. Lindbergh's tentative promise to attend her dance at her home in St. James Square tonight.

During the morning Lindbergh conferred with embassy officials regarding the details of his passage on the American cruiser Memphis, which will carry both himself and his monoplane home. He approved the plans that had been made and gave instructions for taking the plane aboard the warship.

It is understood that "The Spirit of St. Louis" will be taken aboard the Memphis at Southampton tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Instead of today as originally planned. After picking up the plane, the Memphis will proceed to Cherbourg for the aviator, who is expected to go on board Saturday morning.

Capt. Lindbergh was much relieved to find he was going to have the airplane on the same ship. He desires to superintend personally the reassembling of the machine at Washington in preparation for his flight to New York.

Lindbergh has promised to come back to Europe again. He wants to return when he can have all the time and all the privacy he desires to study European flying methods and European airplane construction at first hand.

Capt. Lindbergh's second visit to Paris is entirely unofficial and private and he has refused to make any engagements for tomorrow—his last day upon European soil. But he will visit various French officials who have been so kind to him for a farewell and a last word of thanks.

Naturally the young airman is highly elated over the prospect of the honors which await him at the hands of his fellow Americans, especially the high honor of being greeted personally by President Coolidge.

WILL BID FAREWELL TO FRANCE FRIDAY; SOCIETY IS PEEVED

Flyer Will Leave On Memphis Saturday Morning.

LONDON, June 2.—The sixth and tenth regiments of United States Marines, commanded by Gen. Smedley Butler, sailed for North China at 11 o'clock this morning upon the American transport Henderson. It is planned for the Henderson to proceed to Takuhar from which point the marines will be taken to Tien-Tsin upon smaller vessels. The detachment sailed under secret orders.

The United States cruiser Richmond, carrying a contingent of marines, also sailed for Tien-Tsin today.

Probably other warships with marines will be sent north shortly. The fourth regiment of marines, the original marine unit in Shanghai, will remain here.

British and French forces will be sent north immediately in accordance with an international agreement whereby an international force will protect the Tien-Tsin Peking railroad.

It is reported that the United States transport Chaumont is proceeding to Tien-Tsin from Olongapo, Philippine Islands, where units of artillery were taken on board.

MANIFESTO SAID TO CALL OFF REVOLT

MEXICO CITY, June 2.—A manifesto, purporting to emanate from Rene Capastran Garza, leader of the religious rebellion, advising rebels to lay down their arms, has been published here.

The manifesto declares that due to military defeats, the death of General Rodolfo Gallegos, the forced departure of Archbishop Jimenez and financial stringency, the revolt must be abandoned.

The manifesto alleges that funds which were to have been forthcoming from an American organization have not been furnished.

MRS. VANDERBILT IS GIVEN DIVORCE

PARIS, June 2.—A decree of divorce was granted today to Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, II, the former Virginia Fair. The judgment, which followed the usual routine court efforts to establish a reconciliation, was read in the private office of the president of the third chamber of the Seine Tribunal.

DECLARE VAN ORMAN WINNER OF BALLOON RACE SECOND TIME

Akron Pilot Brings Ritcheff Cup To That City Again

SENIORS CONVEY THRILLS TO LARGE AUDIENCE IN CLASS PLAY

The new amateur season seems to be coming into its own, as evidenced by the mysterious processes of crime and at least one high-grade thriller has emerged in "The Thirteenth Chair," by Bayard Veiller, which was unusually well given at the opening performance Wednesday night before a large audience in the new Central High School auditorium by the senior class of Central High School as its annual stage offering.

It is something new and just a little different in gothic plots, a tale of deepest mystery presented under the direction of Miss Jean B. Elwell, former Central High School teacher, which calls for more than the usual amount of down-right capable acting by all the principals involved.

It is chuck full of hair-raising occurrences and surprising events and a departure from the straight mystery play in that two murders, which baffled the authorities, are eventually solved by a spiritualistic medium.

The story is full of complication and, of course, finally vindication and we have a system now whereby we automatically suspect the butler right at the start and then pay no more attention to "Who killed Spencer Lee and Edward Wales?" but simply sit back and thoroughly enjoy some really fine bits of emotional acting with the fine touch of comedy woven into the plot.

It may turn out that the butler didn't do it but it is a safe bet none of the suspected guests did either. Ruth White, as Madame Rosalie LaGrange, the medium, who conducts a seance during which Edward Wales (Howell Huston), is mysteriously stabbed to death, while in the act of receiving a spirit message designed to identify the slayer of his friend, Spencer Lee, has some excellent moments of acting of the emotional type, to which she does full justice. Especially is this so when the culpability of her daughter, Helen O'Neill, as played by Sarah Bales, is apparently well established and the medium, in order to find the real murderer, stages a "fake" seance which brings about a confession and vindication for all the suspected persons, of which there are an abundance.

To reveal the entire plot would be to spoil the performance for Thursday evening when the play will be repeated with a majority of the female parts being taken by a second group of students. Another praise-worthy bit of acting is done by Robert Wead, as Inspector Donohue, who conducts a searching investigation of both crimes in question, at the home of Roscoe Crosby (Glenn Hagler) where the latter tragedy took place. Appearing the familiar guise of a detective, the inspector builds up such a chain of circumstantial evidence around one of the woman guests, that apparently there is little hope that a miscarriage of justice will be averted.

Sarah Bales, as Helen O'Neill whose engagement to Will Crosby (Hubert Glass), son of Roscoe Crosby, is announced before the killing of Wales, has a difficult character to portray and carries it off with well-merited honors.

Hubert Glass is well fitted for the part of the devoted lover of Miss O'Neill. Glenn Hagler and Howell Huston also were selected for ideal parts and merit attention. The remainder of the cast including Elizabeth Alexander, as "Mrs. Crosby," Imogene Dean, as "Mary Eastwood," Bessie Bechtel, as "Helen Trent," Philip Sutton, as "Braddish Trent," Robert Butts, as "Howard Standish," Arthur Haverstick, as "Philip Mason," Emma LaMar, as "Elizabeth Erskine," Winifred Sheets, as "Grace Standish," Julian Doggett, as "Pollock," Esther Nash, as "The Maid," Homer Henrie, as "Sergeant Dunn," and Bruce Bickett, as "Doonan," come in for congratulations.

The play was produced through special arrangement with Samuel French, New York, and has its setting in the Italian room of Roscoe Crosby's home, from where the action never shifts.

The high school orchestra, under direction of E. G. Whitworth, played between acts.

Unless you are thrill-proof you will get a "kick" out of "The Thirteenth Chair." Don't mind the title. See it!

Marital Decalogues

THE REV. L. MORGAN CHAMBERS, OF WICHITA, KAN., WHO HAS DRAFTED EXPLICIT RULES FOR CONDUCT IN FOUR WALKS OF LIFE.

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927 WICHITA, Kan., Jun. 2.—Dr. L. Morgan Chambers, pastor of the St. Paul's Methodist Church in Wichita, has just completed a series of sermons which have drawn very favorable comment from all the wedded life, but dine out upon occasion.

3. Thou shalt not treat thy husband like a stranger in his own house.

4. Thou shalt flatter thy husband and feed him if thou wouldst have contentment at home.

5. Thou shalt not preach economy to thy husband and thyself be extravagant.

6. Make much allowance for the promises he made thee as a lover; then shalt thou, live contentedly.

7. Thou shalt not permit other loves to come between thyself and thy husband, not even the love of thy child.

8. Thou shalt be silent about thy private business affairs, telling them not to thy nearest women friends; remember that thy friends have friends.

9. Be not skilled in finding thy husband's faults, if thou wouldst inspire him to success.

10. Thou shalt love and serve thy God, even against the will of thy husband; remember he did not buy thy soul with a marriage fee.

For Parents
1. Thou shalt not be a "killjoy"

For Husbands
1. Husband, obey your wife; then thou shalt live long in the land and dwell in peace.

2. Thou shalt not have one moral standard for thyself and another for thy wife. Thou art the stronger of the two and should set the example in moral stability.

3. Thou shalt not lie to thy wife, for she will surely find thee out.

4. Thou shalt not marry unless thou dost desire a home and family.

5. Remember that thou didst marry a human being and not an angel.

6. Thou shalt not complain to others that thy wife does not understand thee, for in this thou art an artful camouflager.

7. Thou shalt praise thy wife generously, for she has all the good qualities that made her win some to thee in thy bachelor days.

8. Thou shalt not stay out at nights.

9. Thou shalt go 50-50 in all thy financial matters, for thy wife can do more with money than thou canst ever hope to do. Remember, she is not a hired servant in thy house.

10. Thou shalt not hold thy religion in thy wife's name. Thou art the religious head of the house.

For Wives
1. Thou shalt honor thy husband's father and mother, especially his mother.

2. Thou shalt not bake and to thy children in the name of religion, for this is a libel upon God and a blight upon thy child.

2. Thou shalt lead thy children and not drive them, for love is winsome, but force is a confession of thine own failure.

3. Remember the days of thy youth and thou wilt be more tolerant toward thy children.

4. Thou shalt not fret thyself for sins of flaming youth, for verily they are milder and fewer than those of former days.

5. Thou shalt respect the personality of thy children.

6. Thou shalt not talk down to thy children, for verily a pal is more potent than a king.

7. Thou shalt love thy children dearly; they may not be ideal, but thy worst child will serve thee better than thy best friend.

8. Thou shalt be a true Christian if thou would have thy children follow Christ.

For Preachers
1. Thou shalt not preach until

God calls thee to the ministry; thou art God's man.

2. Thou shalt be more diligent in thy work than the most industrious toiler in thy parish. Verily laziness is the besetting sin of the ministry and an idle preacher tempts the devil.

3. Thou shalt make the church thy force, not thy field.

4. Thou shalt have success or leave the ministry and earn an honest living. God never called thee to be a maker of excuses.

5. Thou shalt serve the Lord thy God with all thy mind. Remember that a live program and a new idea are rare and precious treasures among the clergy.

6. Be tactful.

7. Thou shalt respect but never fear the church; thy council nor any living man; thou art not for sale.

8. To 'thyself' be humanly true. Verily, religion has suffered more from artificial saints than from all the wiles of the devil.

9. Be prepared. Occupy and fill thy pulpit.

10. Believe thy message if thou wouldst have others receive it.

For Wives
1. Thou shalt honor thy husband's father and mother, especially his mother.

2. Thou shalt not bake and to thy children in the name of religion, for this is a libel upon God and a blight upon thy child.

2. Thou shalt lead thy children and not drive them, for love is winsome, but force is a confession of thine own failure.

3. Remember the days of thy youth and thou wilt be more tolerant toward thy children.

4. Thou shalt not fret thyself for sins of flaming youth, for verily they are milder and fewer than those of former days.

5. Thou shalt respect the personality of thy children.

6. Thou shalt not talk down to thy children, for verily a pal is more potent than a king.

7. Thou shalt love thy children dearly; they may not be ideal, but thy worst child will serve thee better than thy best friend.

8. Thou shalt be a true Christian if thou would have thy children follow Christ.

For Preachers
1. Thou shalt not preach until

God calls thee to the ministry; thou art God's man.

2. Thou shalt be more diligent in thy work than the most industrious toiler in thy parish. Verily laziness is the besetting sin of the ministry and an idle preacher tempts the devil.

3. Thou shalt make the church thy force, not thy field.

4. Thou shalt have success or leave the ministry and earn an honest living. God never called thee to be a maker of excuses.

5. Thou shalt serve the Lord thy God with all thy mind. Remember that a live program and a new idea are rare and precious treasures among the clergy.

6. Be tactful.

7. Thou shalt respect but never fear the church; thy council nor any living man; thou art not for sale.

8. To 'thyself' be humanly true. Verily, religion has suffered more from artificial saints than from all the wiles of the devil.

9. Be prepared. Occupy and fill thy pulpit.

10. Believe thy message if thou wouldst have others receive it.

11. Thou shalt not be a "killjoy"

SALLY'S SALLIES

Men often find "sweet" girls to be bitter disappointments.

Famed Poet Poses

Mr. Markham is preparing, while on a visit to his sister-in-law, Miss May Murphy, Los Angeles, to prepare his poems for book publication. His "Man With the Hoe" has been translated into 30 languages.

DAYTON WILL GIVE PARK TO AIRFIELD

Dayton citizens are behind a move to acquire and make a presentation to the government of four acres of land opposite the new Wright Air Field, valued at several thousand dollars, to forestall the possibility that any unsightly buildings may be erected near the field.

The plot of ground in question, because of its small size, would probably serve no other uses than as a small park, it is believed. It is situated between the highway and a railroad.

Citizens of Dayton are confident of securing the required amount. Dayton residents have already subscribed $425,000, with which the site for the airport was purchased, for the government.

Using a separate fund of $25,000 which was also raised, a Wright memorial will be erected at a high point in the field.

CHURCH WILL GIVE GRADUATES BIBLES

The session of the church instituted this custom some years ago and have faithfully followed it, presenting each commencement season some token of remembrance to the graduates from the church. The Rev. and Mrs. Tilford will also present a book to each of the young people at the services Sunday morning, 10:30 o'clock.

SALE PLANS FAIL

DELEGATES COMING HOME FROM CHURCH GENERAL ASSEMBLY

With the close of the Sixty-ninth General Assembly, United Presbyterian Church of North America, Washington, D. C., Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 p. m., the Rev. and Mrs. James P. Lytle, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Eavey, the men delegates to the assembly, are expected to arrive home this week.

Next year's meeting of the assembly will be held at St. Louis, Mo. The Washington assembly took decided action upon several important matters, with a lively debate on each issue. Proposals to rescind actions of previous assemblies which called for the publication of a psalter-hymnal were rejected by a large majority. A similar majority voted that steps "leading to some definite conclusion" be taken toward union with the large Southern Presbyterian Church. A special committee was appointed to carry forward this work with similar actions of previous assemblies.

The matter which called forth expressions of keenest regret, according to word received from the Rev. Mr. Lytle, was the recommendation of the board of foreign mission to take steps immediately to reduce materially the missionary operations in Egypt, Abyssinia, the Sudan and northern India. The assembly spent much time in prayer and in considering proposals to avoid retrenchment, according to the Rev. Mr. Lytle. In the end, however, the recommendation was carried by a substantial majority vote.

The splendid offerings of the past year, much the largest among Protestant denominations failed by a considerable amount to meet the cost of operation. Financial reports from over the Presbyteries of the church, coast to coast, indicate that the present year will be one of continued financial embarrassment.

The Xenia party left Washington Wednesday morning for Gettysburg, Pa., and expect to reach Xenia Friday.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed
External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Sayre's Drug Store, who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.—Adv.

BIBLE THOUGHT

A COMPLETE DELIVERANCE—Deliver me from blood guiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation; and my tongue shall sing aloud of thy righteousness, Psalm 51:14.

PUSHING THROUGH TO THE FINISH

There are a great number of people who begin things and make a try at them for a little while, and then quit. The high school classes that are soon to graduate will show greatly depleted numbers in the majority of cities. Many young people enter educational classes, university extension and correspondence courses, and fail to finish.

It is natural that people should want to do a lot of experimenting and feeling their way along. Yet there are too many who get very easily discouraged. A few difficulties, and they are ready to throw up the thing they began upon. The people who really make a success of things look into any new project carefully before they go into it. They talk with people who have tried the thing out and they know pretty nearly what they are up against. But after they get into a thing, they stick to it "like a puppy to a root," as the old timers used to say.

Some young people in the schools probably feel discouraged about now. The year's work has been hard for them, and they are about ready to give up. They should reflect that each year of real effort makes the next year easier. If they quit, they are about like the mountain climber who gives up just as he is within reach of the top.

Some people are great on the enthusiasm with which they start community movements, and they make fervent speeches in behalf of such new ideas. But when it comes to doing the real work, they quit and pass the burden of the effort over to someone else.

Many people start in business, perhaps without thorough study of the situations they are up against. They run up against difficulties and they quit just as success was coming. A little more patient service, a little more advertising, might pull them over the hill. We need more finishers, in the schools and in all work and business.

REASON FOR GROWING FAME

Before the story of Charles Lindbergh's epic flight to France is completed it is probable that more than 300,000 articles on his doings and also sayings will be furnished his mother by a clipping bureau and the collection will be far and away the largest ever made possible on a single subject. The fact is that the "Lone Eagle" had not landed in France before these clippings included many thousands more words than were given in the newspapers to the discovery of the North Pole by Peary. The young man's ability to express himself in clean cut English and without verbosity adds to the value of his story.

One compact paragraph which reveals the genius of this modern Viking is that in which he disclaims credit for striking the Irish coast so accurately and says: "The fact that I came within three miles of my objective was a coincidence. If I had come within twenty miles that would have been navigation."

Fairness, thoughtfulness and a remarkable ability to exercise proper regard for the other person have been evident in all the quoted remarks of this amazing young American in Paris, even to the one-word acquiescence he gave the brunette who asked if she could kiss him.

DIFFERENT KIND OF PAGEANT

A Denver pastor's recent complaint that the beauty contest mania is running amuck in America, and that we have need for contests of brain or ability is a point well taken. The trouble seems to be that we are surfeited with beauty. Being a practical nation, we must put everything to work, and the only thing thus far found to do with beauties to make them earn their right to a place under the sun is to put them in beauty contests. As for staging a pageant of brains, we are at a loss to know how it could be arranged, even in Boston.

AIRPORTS AND CAPITALS

Postal authorities, planning for the future expansion of the air mail, say that Laredo or El Paso, Tex., are the logical clearing points for air mail routes to Central and South America.

Growth of this air transportation is bound to influence greatly the map of the future. Cities which are prepared to make the most of their air assets are the cities that will be on this map. Airports built now may be the pioneer settlements for the air capitals of the next generation.

OUR GREATEST ENVOY

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

WHO IS YOUR MEANEST ACQUAINTANCE?

Maybe you have observed that nearly everybody has a candidate for the post of Meanest Man on Earth. A few nights ago a group of four or five of us were sitting about philosophizing about various in consequential affairs and somebody suggested that we hold a little informal contest to see which one of us had come in contact with the meanest man.

We neglected to provide any prize for the winner of the contest, and I'm sorry, for I believe my man was a formidable entry. At any rate, I'll tell him my story:

Some years ago when I was reporting the daily doings in the county court house for a big newspaper, a queer case came up in which a woman was holding a baby as a sort of hostage for a debt. A young mother had died leaving a baby about a year old. The father of the baby, unable to care for it himself, arranged to have it looked after by its grandmother—his mother-in-law. But he had failed to pay her the weekly fee agreed upon. In due course, he was about to marry again, re-establish his home, and have his child with him once more.

The baby had become the one bright spot in its grandmother's life and she was naturally reluctant to give it up. Her ultimatum was that she would not let it go out of her home and care until the father paid what he had agreed upon.

Well, the court ruled that while she ought to be paid whatever was coming to her, it is against the spirit of the law to hold a baby or any other human being as hostage for debt. He therefore gave the father permission to go over and take the child from the poor grief-stricken grandmother's arms. This the man promptly did. His new wife, successor to the grandmother's daughter, was at his side and she was a rather pleasant looking woman. The grandmother turned a fearful face to her and said:

"Will you promise me always to be good to that little baby? It's my daughter's child and the only thing in this world that I have left to love."

The young woman solemnly

promised that she would love and cherish the babe as if it were her own, and I have an idea that she meant to keep her word.

Then the old grandmother made one other request—this of her son-in-law.

"Won't you let me keep the baby's mittens to remember it by?" she asked. "I knitted them myself and they will be the only little keepsake left."

They were fastened together by a long piece of heavy yarn suspended from the child's neck.

The father's answer was to take the mittens and tuck them into his overcoat pocket, as if fearful that the woman might snatch them away.

"Should say not!" he said, with a sneering curl of his lip. And walked out of the courtroom, to the accompaniment of hisses.

Who's YOUR candidate?

How to Achieve Beauty

EXERCISES FOR GENERAL REDUCING

Yesterday I told you of various rules you should observe in regard to the quantity and kind of food to eat if overweight is your problem and today I am going into the subject of exercise as a necessary complement to this sort of a diet.

I will outline below various simple exercises which if consistently followed together with the faithful observance of the diet regulations, I have given you so far this week cannot but bring results provided, of course, the cause for your being overweight is not due to some organic trouble.

Through exercise excessive fat is used up and disposed of. And it is likewise through lack of exercise that fat accumulates and as a possible consequence serious chronic diseases may have their beginning.

Vigorous walking is one of the best kind of exercises you can include in and four to five miles a day is none too much for those who would keep their bodies in fit condition.

The daily warm bath before retiring which is most important for every woman from both a health and beauty standpoint assumes double importance when one is on a reducing regime as it is a very substantial aid in assisting elimination through the skin, of poisons that have accumulated during the day. A cold sponge bath or shower in the morning is very invigorating and beneficial in helping you start the day right.

The following exercises practiced upon arising before an open window while breathing deeply and rhythmically of the fresh morning air, after you have had either a large tumbler of cold water or a cup of warm water to which the juice of half a lemon has been added, will help give the desired symmetry to the figure.

Counting helps to get the rhythm and puts more "snap" into the movements. Do the exercises slowly at first, gradually increasing speed and number of times each day.

An ordinary broomstick or rod of convenient length should be used while doing these exercises. Hold the broom handle or rod as high over the head and as far back as possible. Bend forward at waist, stretching the arms downward in an effort to touch the floor with the backs of the fingers of both hands. Return to starting position.

Place the stick or rod at back of the neck with arms extended—bend forward from the waist with head back keeping knees together. Return to upright position.

Stand at attention with arms extended to end of rod. Extend the arms forward and at the same time lift the knee so that it almost touches the rod, pointing toe downward. Then return to starting position and repeat same exercise with the left knee, also pointing toe downward.

Place the rod or stick at back of neck with arms extended along the ends of rod—twist the body to the right, then return to starting position and twist to the left then back to position again. Be sure to keep the heels on the floor so that there is an even twist from ankles to shoulder.

Start at attention with hands extended toward end of rod. Extend the arms forward at the same time bending the knees and lowering your body to the heels to a squatting position—return to position. Go through this exercise slowly endeavoring to keep evenly balanced. Hold rod high over head with the arms width of body apart. One bend to the right at the waist, keeping arms in a straight line with the sides of the chest—return to position. Then bend to left in the same manner—return to position. Lift rod high over head with arms extended. Swing arms forward and to the right bending body at waist until rod touches the floor just outside the right foot. Then swing upward to starting position with rod over the head and swing forward and downward to the left, touching the rod to the floor outside of left foot, then swing back to the starting position.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"It might be said that the silk hat era in our church life was in many respects a dull and conventional one. Men, or some men anyhow, went to church with a silk hat and prayed into it. But they went to church—that was the main thing. And it was the church-going generation which won the war. I am for the silk hat every day in the week."—Rev. E. L. Macasey.

"Education is the remedy for most ills and if young women about to marry were given instructions on how to run a home, taught to cook, and sew and made useful generally, there probably wouldn't be many divorces. Men can't be expected to look at their wives through rose-colored glasses when they are making life a continual unhappy struggle."—Judge Joseph Burke.

"That Christian is ignorant who does not know or endeavor to know what separates him denominationally from his fellow Christians, and to discover the real unity of the spirit that does exist. It is a solemn duty of Christians to look upon every Christian of every name as a brother."—Bishop Charles H. Brent.

"The wickedness of youth has been one of the most recent topics of comment. They do have their faults. But in such a marvelous feat as Lindbergh's successful flight there is portrayed certain traits of character which are predominant in young people."—Rev. C. Everett Wagner.

"Of all things that Lindbergh's great feat demonstrated, the greatest was to show us that a person could still get the entire front page without murdering anyone."—Will Rogers.

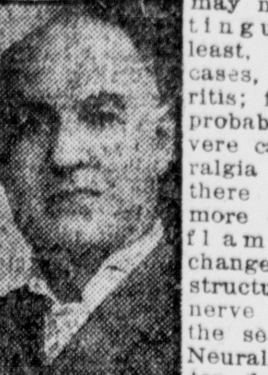

"Just as it is advocated that we apply reason instead of force in solving the differences among nations, we should also apply reason in moral disarmament and settle differences among individuals."—C. C. Romalser.

NEURALGIA

This term means pain in a nerve or nerves, and in reality may not be distinguished, at least, in severe cases, from neuritis; for there is probably no severe case of neuralgia in which there are not more or less inflammatory changes in the structure of the nerve which is the seat of pain.

Neuralgia is often designated by the name of the nerve in which the pain is seated, the facial, the sciatic and the intercostal being most frequently attacked. But neuralgia may also be symptomatic of a distinct disease like gout, rheumatism, mineral poisoning, malaria, diabetes or excessive use of tobacco.

It may also be reflected from disease of the eyes, the teeth or the internal organs. Neuralgic pain may be stabbing or darting, but it may also be dull and aching, burning or tingling, gouging or boring or suggestive of crawling insects.

It may also be intermittent or paroxysmal, variable in severity, lasting a few minutes at a time or hours and continue at short intervals for days, months or years. It may be so severe that the patient will lose reason and self-control and take his life. It is most intense at the surface, but there may be soreness along the entire track of the nerve. It may come suddenly or be preceded by soreness and stiffness; it may come in connection with malaria and seem to be a part of it. It may be accompanied by a feeling of coldness, or an eruption on the skin, or with muscular twitching or nausea and vomiting, or the hair may fall out, or turn grey.

An attack may have no apparent exciting cause, or it may follow grief, fright or any intense emotion, a draught of air, or fatigue or severe cold. It is more common in cold than in warm weather, in women than in men, and is most frequent in middle life.

Its victims are usually those of nervous temperament with neurotic inheritance.

Its treatment depends largely upon its cause. Those who live in cold, damp malarial, or otherwise unhealthy climates, may be cured by a change of residence to a location which is more salubrious.

Dietetic treatment is also important, especially for those who have abused their digestive apparatus by excesses in food and drink or even by using food that was not suited to them.

The pain may be relieved by so simple a measure as giving the digestive organs a rest or a comparative rest.

Surgical operations are sometimes curative, including the stretching of the sciatic nerve, removal of a portion of the facial nerve or even of the ganglion from which it originates, or by injecting alcohol into it.

The painful surface may be blistered or cauterized, rubbed with stimulating liniments or exposed to X-rays, light rays or galvanism.

There are also many drugs which are of the greatest value, including the coal tar preparations, iron, arsenic, strychnia, phosphorus, quinine and aconite.

But it may happen that all these measures will be resisted and the case will prove the despair of the patient and his friends and of the doctors who are powerless to cure him.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. B.: 1.—An X-ray picture shows inflammation of the gall bladder. What is the general course which the disease takes? Medicines have given me temporary relief, but the pain is particularly severe with the recurring monthly illness.

2.—Ought I to consult a specialist?

Answer:—It is very apt to get worse. One attack with severe pain is but the predecessor of others and medicines are merely palliatives. The best plan, now that you know there is gall bladder disease, is to have the gall bladder opened and drained.

I think it would be wise and prudent.

The Theatre

French papers are sniffing sarcastically over America's continued rejection of their books and plays.

When Maurice Debokra's book, "The Madonna of the Sleepings" was withdrawn from the book-stalls recently, France was mildly surprised. French critics found the novel entertaining and amusing and the sales were enormous, proving that the majority of the people also approved.

The banning of the much discussed play "The Captive" was ridiculed and not understood. One paper plainly stated that American play censors showed a lack of understanding and intelligence in barring a highly moral play, written truthfully, "The Captive" after a two year run is still playing to packed houses in Paris.

The French Press says that "American's shamed feeling" puzzles them. "What," they are exclaiming, "does this statue of liberty actually stand for?"

Appreciation of good music is growing in the United States, according to the directors of the Philharmonic Society of New York, who point to the steadily increasing attendance at concerts as proof of their assertion. The demand for seats at next season's concerts at seats are 25 per cent over this date last year, according to Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the board of Public interest in the forthcoming season has been heightened by announcement that the Philharmonic Society has secured the services of Arturo Toscanini as its orchestra leader for the next five years.

"It is no exaggeration that the engagement of Mr. Toscanini as a regular conductor not only marks an epoch in musical arts in this country, but it is also one of the most important achievements in the history of the society," Mr. Mackay declared.

In the very near future Mr. Mackay expects the Philharmonic artists will play regularly to "sold out" houses.

SPORTSMEN TO MEET IN CLEVELAND SOON AT SUMMER MEETING

COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—Sportmen from all parts of Ohio will gather in Cleveland June 3 to attend the summer convention of the League of Ohio Sportmen, and to discuss fish and game water conservation and reforestation problems. The proposed conservation department coequal with other state departments to take the place of the fish and game division of the Department of Agriculture will also be discussed. Both the Izaak Walton League and the League of Ohio Sportmen are agreed that there should be a separate department for conservation in Ohio.

One of the leading speakers representing the farmer's interests will be N. E. Shaw, editor of Ohio Stockman and Farmer. The sportmen plan to have the farmers fully represented in the proposed department which will neither create new jobs nor increase expense of operation. The sportmen would pay the entire cost with their license money without cost to taxpayers.

Resolutions opposing the opening of the Roosevelt game preserve as a public picnic grounds or for tourists are expected to be adopted. The sportmen want the preserve kept as a sanctuary for big game and want automobiles, campfires, and picnic parties kept out as it was established for game purposes with their license money, they declare.

The convention will be held in connection with the Ohio Sportsman's Outdoor Exposition. Mayor Mitchell, Dan Beard, Boy Scout commissioner and other notables will be in attendance.

SCOUTS FIELD DAY EXERCISES TO BE AT SHAWNEE PARK

Arrangements have been completed for the annual Boy Scout Field Day exercises June 8 at Shawnee Park, in which Troops No. 1, 2 and 3 will participate.

Fifteen events are scheduled, which will consist of a tug-of-war, for which qualifications must be made, half mile run, standing broad jump, standing high jump, finals in the tug-of-war, 50-yard dash, fire by friction, running high jump, pole vault, 100-yard dash, mile run, baseball throw, half-mile relay race, string burning and 400-yard relay race.

Rules of the contests require that all entrants in the various events must be registered. Each Scout in good standing. Each troop may have a stated number of entrants in each event.

The meet will begin promptly at 2 o'clock with competent officials in charge. Each Scoutmaster must see that the entries of his troop are in the hands of officials of the meet by 3 o'clock Wednesday morning June 8.

Baseball games between the troops to decide the Scout championship are also on the program. Drawings will be made between the three troops for the first game, one troop drawing a bye. In the evening the winner of the afternoon contest will meet the team which drew a bye.

HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL Fielder Should Play Infield

AS TOLD BY STARS OF THE GAME

I have found that playing the outfield is far from the snap many people believe it to be. It involves much more than the mere catching of fly balls. An outfielder should be ready to run in any direction. Like an infielder, he is likely to find himself strong in some respects and weak in others. When this is the case, he should be alert to remedy the flaw.

Probably the most difficult part of outfielding is the stunt of sprinting backwards to pocket a line drive that is smashed directly over fielder's head. If a gardener can master that particular task, I think the other feats like running to make catches at his right or left and for the flies in front of him, become a natural tendency.

Therefore I would advise the aspiring fly-catcher to practice diligently going backwards on the dead run for such smashes. After a while he should develop an instinct that will prompt him to turn around precisely at that fraction of a second the ball is ready to fall into his glove.

In conclusion, I suggest that those who are ambitious to improve their performance on grounders, take part in infield practice sessions.

The knack of being able to field ground balls, in faultless style, is an invaluable aid to the gardener, because it stops the base runners from running wild when they realize that the outfielder is also a good "infielder."

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, June 2.—The afternoon Lindbergh was due to arrive in Paris thousands of persons were grouped outside a newspaper office in Times Square. Bulletins were slow and the watchers contented themselves with discussing various phases of the flight. There existed widely varying opinion with respect to the difference of time between New York and the French capital. The prevailing impression was that three hours was the breach. Some said five, and a few thought eight. One woman insisted that thirty-six hours was the exact difference, and said she could prove it by the afternoon paper in which she had read it. She left to purchase a paper and was not seen thereafter.

"Able's Irish Rose" is about to wither.

On May 23, "America's favorite comedy" entered the sixth year of its existence and coincidentally found its way into Joe Leblang's out-of-state agency.

When Broadway announces that a show has been Leblanged, it means the end is in sight.

In the case of "Able," however, the tradition was upset. Shortly after the show opened, in 1922, it looked as if the production would be a failure. Mr. Leblang was hastily notified, and preparations were begun for the obsequies. Then some thing happened. What it was no one has ever been able to find out. Business picked up and Leblang stepped aside. But so far as old-timers on Broadway can recall it is the only show that has been in and out of Leblang's clutches in the course of a continuous run.

If the play lasts until early July it will hang up a new world's record for a continuous run, passing the mark of 2,238 set by the London production of "Chu Chin Chow."

There is more nonsense peddled by "special writers" about New York's night clubs than any other feature of the city's life.

The night club is a retreat where a jaded gentleman in quest of a "thrill" may, for a consideration out of all proportion to the return, traffic in bootleg affection and phony hooch while his sensibilities are lulled by delirium tremens music termed "jazz."

It is the haunt of the hopeless, the rendezvous of the roustabout, the root of the out-of-town "sucker" with more money than brains, and of the native single gentleman and his current wife.

It is also the haunt of the latest manifestation of the breed known as "columnists,"—young men with puffy eyes and a dimmed vision who tout the proprietors daily in their papers, for a "consideration," and think they're seeing life.

The average New York night club is the equivalent of the old-time "joint," the name of which,

for some reason or other, is not supposed to be used in polite society.

The consumption of soda water in New York is tremendous. Broadway, as Doc. Somebody remarked the other day, may spend more for orange drink, pineapple juice and ginger ale than it does for education, but the coin thus released in circulation infiltrates into numerous branches of business and keeps the wheels of the old machine whirling.

A drug store on one of the busiest of New York's corners pays a yearly rental equal to a king's ransom; and the rent is earned by six soda fountains that sizzle and fizz in a daily sixteen-hour staccato.

And the only place left on Fifth avenue where ice cream soda can still be purchased for 10 cents is at Brother Woolworth's Nickel and Dime Conservatory.

Unworried

MRS. WARD T. VAN ORMAN

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

AKRON, O., June 2.—"Men must work and women must weep" may apply to sailors and their wives, but not to balloonists and their mates. Mrs. Ward T. Van Orman, wife of the world's champion balloon pilot, never worries while her husband is in the air.

He cured her of ever feeling anxiety for him by taking her for a ride. On the trip the two were in the air for eight hours, flying from Ohio into New York, and when the world's champion decided to come down his wife begged him to keep on going.

"No matter what happens Ward would know what to do," Mrs. Van Orman says. "I have followed him in every race. I have maps at the house and he sends me a telegram just before he leaves and others from the air."

"In the 1924 national race Mrs. Carl K. Wollam and I knew our husbands had won before they knew it themselves," Van Orman and Wollam were partners on that race.

In the 1925 race the two were in touch with their wives by radio while their wives were in touch with them by means of dropped telegrams. Ten thousand feet in the air on a night as black as the inside of an ink well "Van" and "Wolly" turned on their receiving set. A voice spoke from the corner of the car. It was Mrs. Van Orman's.

Then Mrs. Wollam's voice was heard. The two were broadcasting good luck messages from Cleveland. On the second day out the Akron flyers were about to land, believing they had the race cinched, when word came to them over the radio that Capt. Harry E. Honeywell, veteran St. Louis pilot, was still in the air. Accordingly they tightened their belts another notch, stayed up in the air and went on to victory.

Radio had won for them just as it did in 1924. In that race they picked up warnings of a heavy storm ahead while only a few hours under way. While other contestants floundered in squalls later in the race the Akronites hurled the storm by ascending to 18,000 feet and swept on to victory.

In the 1926 international race from Brussels, Belgium, radio again played an important part. Lost in a heavy fog Van Orman and Walter W. Morton of Akron got their bearings from messages broadcast from Bremen, Germany, and laid a course which carried them to Solvesborg, Sweden, and a world championship.

Van Orman and Wollam were the only team carrying receiving sets in the 1924 national race. In 1925 and 1926 several more sets appeared.

COLORFUL PAGEANT FEATURES CEDARVILLE CEDAR DAY PARTY

A colorful pageant during which Miss May McKay, New Burlington, was crowned the 1927 May Queen by Miss Lena Hastings, Cedarville, upon whom the honor was bestowed last year, featured the annual Cedar Day exercises held by Cedarville College students on the college campus Wednesday morning.

A large and attentive crowd witnessed the pageant. The students participating were garbed in brilliant costumes of every hue.

The exercises opened at 10 o'clock with instrumental music furnished by Miss Helen Hiff, Kenneth Little and Willard Thuma, after which the Cedar Day oration was delivered by Day Kennedy.

Three vocal selections by a girls' chorus of twelve voices was followed by the dedication of the Cedar tree, planted every year, Martha Dean, of the class of 1927, making the dedication talk.

The impressive procession featured by the entrance of the May Queen came next in which all students and a number of children participated. After the march to the throne, Miss McKay was officially crowned May Queen amid elaborate ceremonies.

During the processional, Dr. J. A. Talcott, former army aviator, who is supervisor of music at the college, and who still makes numerous trips in the air, piloted an airplane above the campus and dropped greetings to the May Queen.

The greetings took the form of an emblem of the college colors, which was delivered to Miss McKay during the march.

The beautiful May pole dance in front of the throne preceded the pageant, which told a story of pirate days in which villagers along the English seashore danced and made merry after finding treasure chest abandoned by a pirate band.

The pageant opened with the dance of the china dishes, the dance of the jewels, the silk scarf, Mantillos, cameos and ended with a Spanish dance. A comical stunt by the boys of the college in which the type of football as "mother would have it played" was shown, was also the occasion for great merriment.

During the festivities, gold baseball charms were presented to President W. R. McChesney and F. A. Jurket, member of the faculty.

uly, by the college athletic association, and Coach R. M. Borst was given a gold golf stick. Committee in charge of the exercises was composed of Mrs. R. M. Borst, and Misses Kathryn Hughes, Helen Hiff and Irene Shannon. In the afternoon, the exercises closed with a baseball game between the college alumni and regular varsity and a regulation game between the varsity and O. S. S. O. Home which was won by Cedarville, by a score of 12 to 2.

COLLEGE SENIORS OFFER CLASS PLAY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

A large audience witnessed the presentation of the unusual play, "Captain Applejack," by the senior class of Cedarville College, under the direction of Mrs. R. M. Borst, wife of the school's athletic director, at the village opera house Wednesday night, culminating Cedar Day exercises.

Robert Turnbull, as Ambrose Applejohn, took the leading part and filled the difficult role in a capable manner.

The other members of the cast, who are deserving of special consideration, include: John Rockhold, as "Lush," the butler; Martha Dean, as "Happy Faire," Applejohn's ward; Ruth Burbick, as "Mrs. Agatha Whopcomb"; Betty Crosswell, as "Anna Valeska, Russian dancer; Lois Manor, as "Mrs. Pengard"; Paul Orr, as "Horace Pengard"; Willard Barlow, as "Ivan Borolsky"; Malcolm Turner, as "Bennett"; and Fred Willis, as "Johnny Jason."

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

The Ritzie stunt makes the hit. And thereby Mayville lights are lit. "What are we going to call our stunt when we get it finished?" asked Marty, resting on his carpenter bench after ten minutes of strenuous sawing.

"The Ritzie knock-down stand," suggested Rag.

"Leave it to Rag to always be ready with an answer," laughed Marty. "It sounds like a pretty good name to me. What about it, fellow Ritzies?"

The other three members of the Ritzie band, Patsy, Tag and Betty Ann, agreed that it was a "dandy" name. So it was decided that the stunt which they were preparing for the Mayville carnival should be called the "Ritzie knock-down stand."

Marty and the twins had made the wooden rack upon which the hinged-on dolls stood ready to be knocked over by a carnival customer, on the general dimensions of six feet high and four feet wide. The dolls were made from sticks of hardwood, ten inches long and one and one-half inches thick which Marty carefully cut at his carpenter bench. When all nine sticks were cut according to measure, he fastened ordinary door hinges to them as shown in the illustration.

Patsy then took her turn and soon had transformed the sticks into cocky looking dolls. She made the heads by stuffing muslin with cotton and gluing the rounded balls to the tops of the sticks. She then painted in the features and made funny wigs with unraveled rope. Betty Ann became a dressmaker and a tailor for she dressed the lady dolls in gay colors and flowing ribbons, and put Ritzie flag to the top of each beam. These she had made in her own room so as to be a surprise for the boys. She had scarcely had time to do a bit of important painting when Marty and the twins came dashing into the shop and dressed up in their Sunday clothes.

Seeing the gay bunting, and the new Ritzie flags, they stared first at the doll rack and then at Patsy.

"Gee, it looks great!" said Marty. "Just like a girl to think of dressing it up to look like something. I say, Pat, what are these?" Marty was staring at the freshly painted names under the dolls.

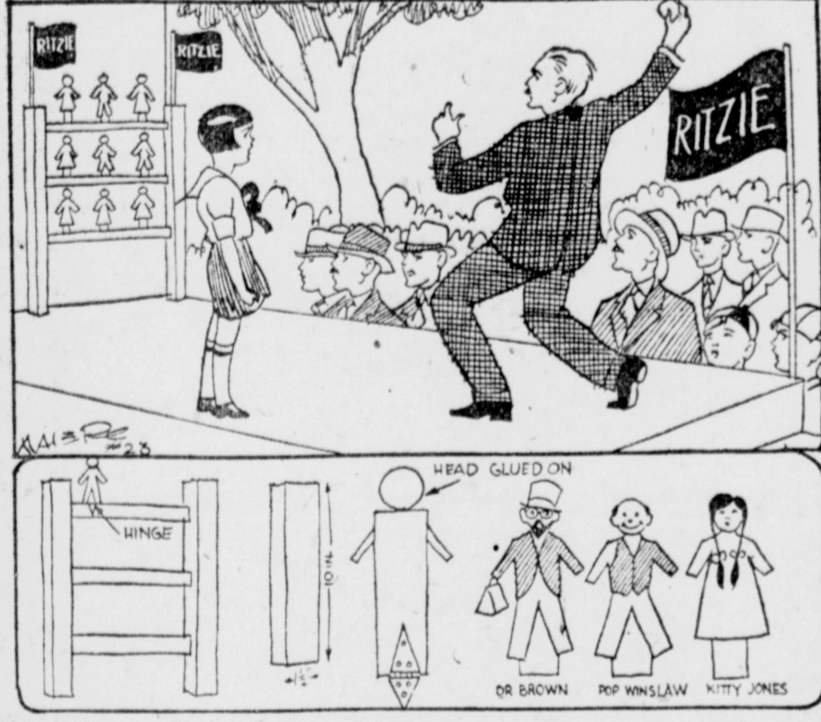

Patsy laughed and said, "I told you you would find out the night of the carnival. That was the secret that Betty and I have been laughing about."

The twins and Marty were at last beginning to understand. They had thought the girls were making just ordinary dolls, but now they discovered that they had been making character dolls instead.

Under one doll, wearing long baggy trousers and shiny black hair, was painted the name Joe, the Shiek. And the funny part of it was that it did look just like Joe was, he fastened everyone of the nine wooden dolls represented some well known person in the village of Mayville.

"By Jove, that's clever," said Marty. "Do you think the people will object?"

"Of course not," assured Patsy.

alored suits on the men dolls. He used crepe paper for her material, because she found that this could be pasted, pinned and ruffled into shape. She had quite a time with the tailored trousers for the men until she found that two strips of crepe paper, cut the shape of trouser legs, and pasted in front of the stick, made the doll look as if it had two perfectly good legs.

Patsy and Betty Ann had hit upon a scheme which they were sure would cause a lot of merriment the night of the carnival and the boys found them giggling to themselves every now and then over some secret that they wouldn't tell.

"What is so funny about a couple of wooden dolls?" asked Tag quite provoked not to be let in on the secret.

"You'll find out the night of the carnival," teased Patsy, and that was all the boys could find out. When that night finally arrived, Patsy slipped out to the carpenter shop, where the doll rack stood in readiness to be carried to the town hall, and put on the finishing touches. She wound the two tall side beams with bunting that her mother had gotten from one of the committee ladies, and tacked a

"I think they'll be flattered instead."

Whether or not Patsy was right, and we'll hope for the Ritzies' sake that she was, the Ritzie knock-down stand was the hit of the Mayville carnival. It kept Marty and the twins busy keeping their customers in lines as they came up to buy balls and throw at the hinged-on dolls. A dark curtain had been placed back of the doll rack so that when a doll was hit, it would fall back against the curtain, only to come bouncing up again on its door hinge.

"Watch out there, Pop Winslow," one of the customers would cry. "Here's where I take a swat at you," and away would whiz the ball toward the Pop Winslow wooden doll.

When the carnival was over and the records completed, it was discovered that the Ritzie knock-down stand had taken in more money than any of the other features, and as the money was to go towards the Mayville street lights, the program committee felt indebted to the Ritzies and sent them a note of appreciation.

Yes, the Ritzies had made a real name for themselves in Mayville.
